VERNE GAGNE

"IRON CLAW" UNBEATABLE

Sirs:

I know that you have had features on Fritz Von Erich in past issues, but you have something every month on this Bum-O, Sammartino. After all, Fritz has beaten Kiniski, Thez, Blanchard, Keomuke, Shuibya and he can beat that Bum-O, Sammartino, too. No body or anything can defeat the "Iron Claw."

W.R. Massey
Grand Prairie, Texas.

BURKE'S RECORD TRUE OR FALSE?

Sirs:

I read in your magazines an article about Mildred Burke where it said she fought with men in her own weight class and defeated them. Now I find that hard to believe, due to the fact they did not allow mixed matches in those early days of Mildred's career. But if I am wrong will you please correct me by showing some pictures of Mildred wrestling with men or working out with them. I am really interested in knowing if the story was true or false.

John Dancico
Morristown, N.J.

(Editor's note: In the depression days they got away with many things not allowed later on. Most of Mildred's mixed matches took place at fairs and carnivals and no photos are available but she did meet and defeat many a male in wrestling contests.)

LIKES STORIES ON "MASKED MEN"

Sirs:

I think you have the greatest magazine in the world. I especially Liked your June issue with the story of The Rebel in it.

I would like to see more stories on the masked men of the world. Like Dr. X, The Destroyer, Dr. Blood, the Blue Infernos and The Assassins.

Jeannie Bagge
Spooner, Wisc.

WANTS AN ARTICLE ON HOLDS

Sirs:

Being a regular reader of your fine magazine, I am asking you to do me a favor in some future issue and run an article on all the most dangerous holds in wrestling with photos if possible, such holds at the Claw, Backbreaker, Neckbreaker, and others.

In the meantime I get many hours of pleasure from reading my copies of WRESTLING REVUE.

W. Fisken
Dundee, Scotland

HOW ABOUT PEPPER?

Sirs:

I think your magazine is great, but it would be even greater if you published a story on Pepper Gomez.

Gomez is part holder of the tag-team title with Pedro Morales and he has beaten such great wretlers as Fred Blassie, Ray Stevens and Bill Meller.

I am sure many of Pepper's fans would enjoy such a story.

Santiago Chavez Jr.
San Francisco, Calif.

(Editor's note: We are planning a feature on Gomez for an upcoming issue.)

WANTS STORY ON OLD TIMERS

Sirs:

I enjoy your magazine and look forward each month to its arrival. I especially like the pin-ups. In the future I would like to read more stories about the old time greats and also something about "Iron Mike" Dibiase and Stan Pulaski.

Betty Titus
Yankton, S.D.

SAYS THE HANGMAN IS FABULOUS

Sirs:

I enjoyed the article you had on Bob Geigel and Bob Brown but I would like to see more on this great team also on Steve Bolus and Roger Kirby, but most of all I would like to see a story on The fabulous Hangman. I always like his rough style, he gets right down to the point and he is a very tough customer.

Terry Dillon
Quincy, Ill.

WELCH IS GREAT

Sirs:

I want to know if you can do a story on Lester Welch. I think he is great. He has beaten guys like Hiro Matsuda, Sputnick Monroe and Mario Galento.

Gary Fox
Tampa, Fla.

(Editor's Note: We had a big feature on Welch in the August '67 issue.)

NOTES FROM UNDER THE DERBY

by Red Berry

Lou Thesz made quite a hit on his recent visit to the Johnny Carson TV show. Lou still looks like a youngster and when you see him in action in the ring it is hard to believe that he has been a star matman for over three decades—time really flies.

I have received some letters about the fiill-in column that was suposedly written by Saul Weingeroff. I say supposedly because I have known that QXZ&*! for many years and never knew him to be able to sign his own name, let alone write. I guess he must have gotten one of those dumb Germans to write it for him, then paid to have it translated into English.

For me to say any more about him would only be to dignify him—he is beneath words. And as to his having beaten me, well, he and that whole bunch of crumby wrestlers of his couldn't beat me, yesterday, today or tomorrow.

I will say no more because already I have wasted too much space on a real FOUL BALL.

After a short vacation Vittorio Apollo is back in action in the Midwest and is teaming up with Danny Hodge. They make one of the most exciting tag-teams around. Both are fast and skillful wrestlers, but lack color. Now, if they had Red Berry for a manager . . .

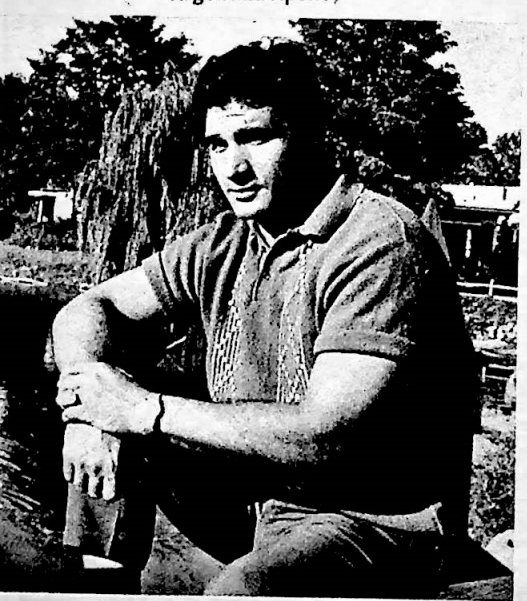
John Paul Henning, the handsome midwestern grappler, has turned to Evangelism and has been drawing large crowds at his appearances at churches throughout Missouri and Kansas.

Tag-team partners Johnny Heisman and Frank Marconi are being called the "Cueballs" by fans in the Carolinas because of the long curly locks sported by the boys(?) . . . Did you know that the Black Venus, the top Negro female wrestling champion, is the mother of eleven children?

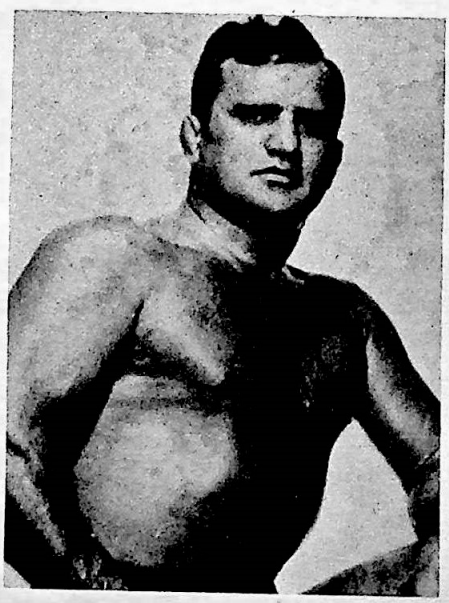
Speaking of the girls, rumors are flying hot and heavy that they will be making their long-awaited debut down under in Australia before long. The Aussie fans, among the best in wrestling, recently took the midgets to their hearts when the little guys made their bow, and they are sure to do the same with the gals.

Marconi and Heidman

Argentina Apollo



Bert Ruby



Dick the Bruiser and his cousin, the Crusher, have a third member of the family active now in wrestling. He is the highly regarded newcomer, Al "Rock" Rogowski, who is just as mean as his two famous relations . . . After recovering from the injury suffered last winter, Larry Hennig engaged in some single matches but has again teamed up with Harley Race and once more the boys are spreading excitement throughout the central states, as well as leaving a trail of broken bodies behind them.

The return of big-time wrestling to the Montreal Forum was a greal smash, with over 2,500 fans being turned away from the 19,000-seat arena and it looks like the Canadian city, which once was one of wrestling's top sports under the late Eddie Quinn, is now back as a big-time wrestling center.

Pat O'Connor, long recognized as one of the most skilled and most sportsmanlike of all wrestlers, has spoken out against the use of the "Cork Screw" hold which Baron Von Heisinger has been using to flatten rivals around Kansas. O'Connor said.

"It is a very dangerous hold, and I have

villainous Germans and their hated manager deserve each other

By HAZEL HARVEY

This fine-looking group consists of Kurt and Karl Von Brauner and their mentor, "Gentleman Saul Weingeroff."

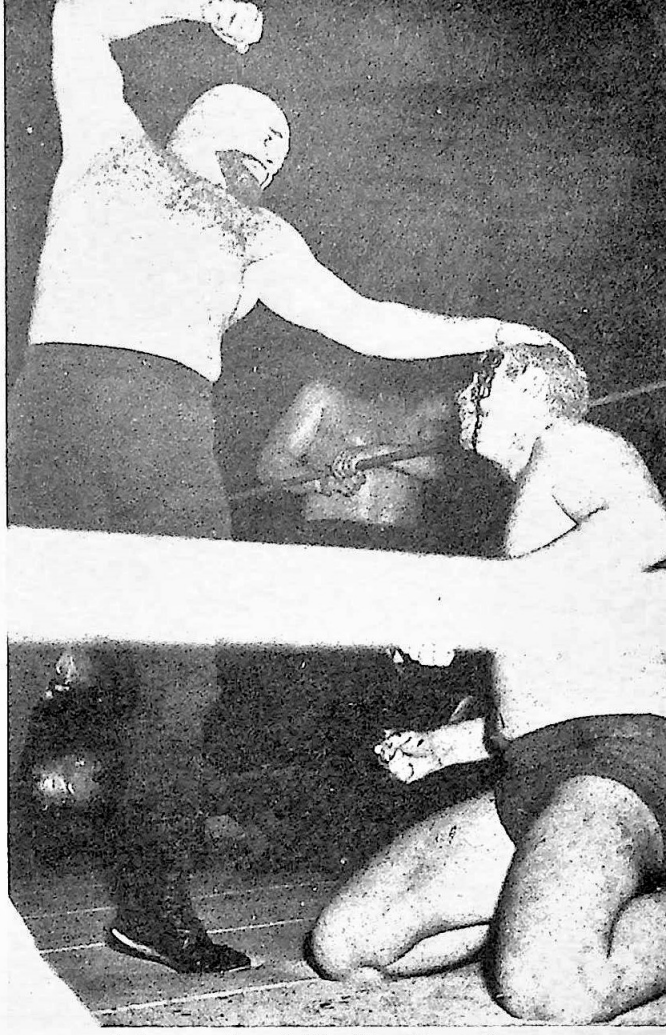
Perfect teamwork. Karl holds Jack Cain, as Saul does some canework.

I'm going back to running my florist's shop now." The above was the comment of one of the most prominent wrestlers in the country when confronted with the news that Kurt and Karl Von Brauner and their manager, Gentleman Saul Weingeroff were back on their brutal mat campaigns.

This vicious German trio has been the scourge of the professional wrestling circuit since its debut in this country in the early sixties. Savage beyond belief, their actions on the canvas have caused many a member of the D.A.R. to throw beer bottles, shoes and sometimes frail husbands at the roughnecks.

Guided by their cagey leader, Weingeroff, the Von Brauners have worked their way up from the small tank-towns to the top of the wrestling belt. Weingeroff, who has been likened to an army general, has led his charges all the way to the top of the pile. Because of injuries, the Germans have been fairly inactive over the past couple of years. They returned to Germany for a while to gather more strategy and their usual variety of vicious tactics before returning to our shores.

Dory Funk Jr. gets some of the fair-play treatment dished out by "Gentleman" Saul and the boys.



A battered and bleeding Dory Jr. is given more of the same.

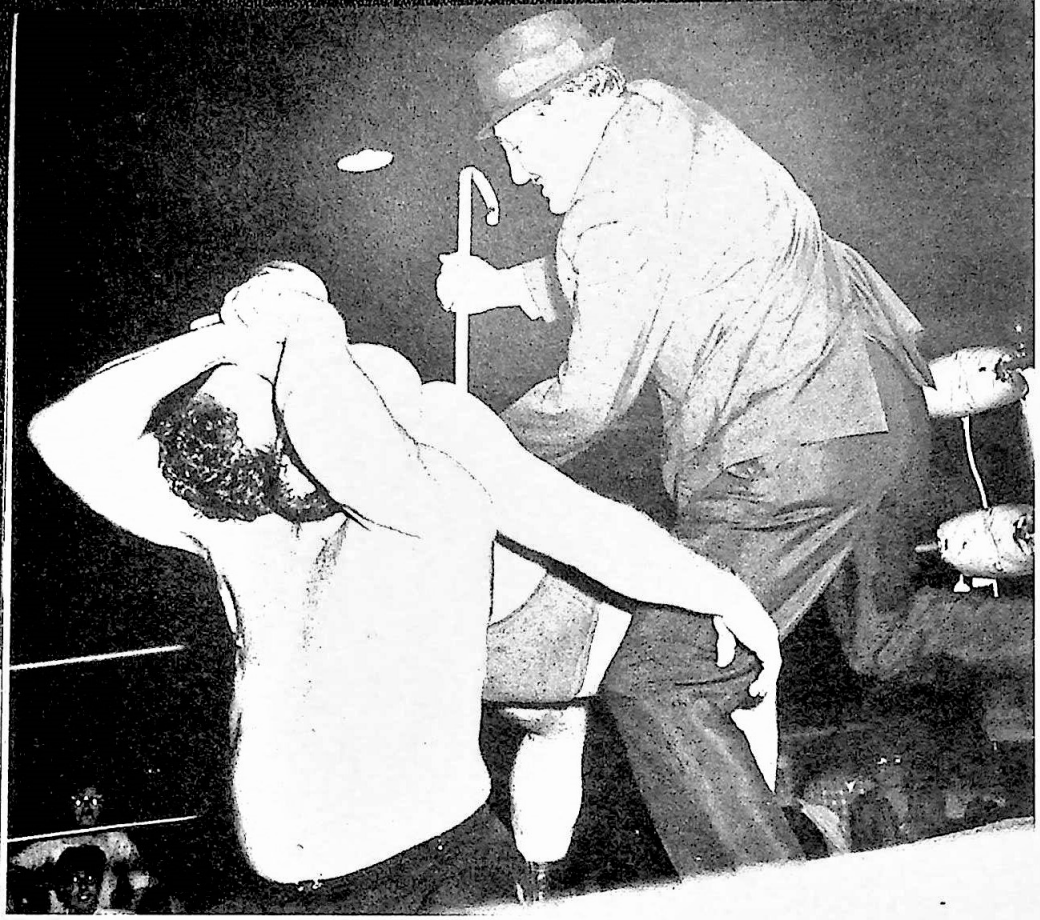
Gentleman Saul, as he likes to be called, has been the object of many a thrown beer bottle himself. Unlike many managers, Weingeroff has been called unfair because in times of stress, he has been known to use his walking cane to "assist" his men when the chips are down. He has been suspended by wrestling associations innumerable times. But, for this, he says, "Well, it's a rough business and I don't believe in playing the game fairly. I just want my boys to win. That's all."

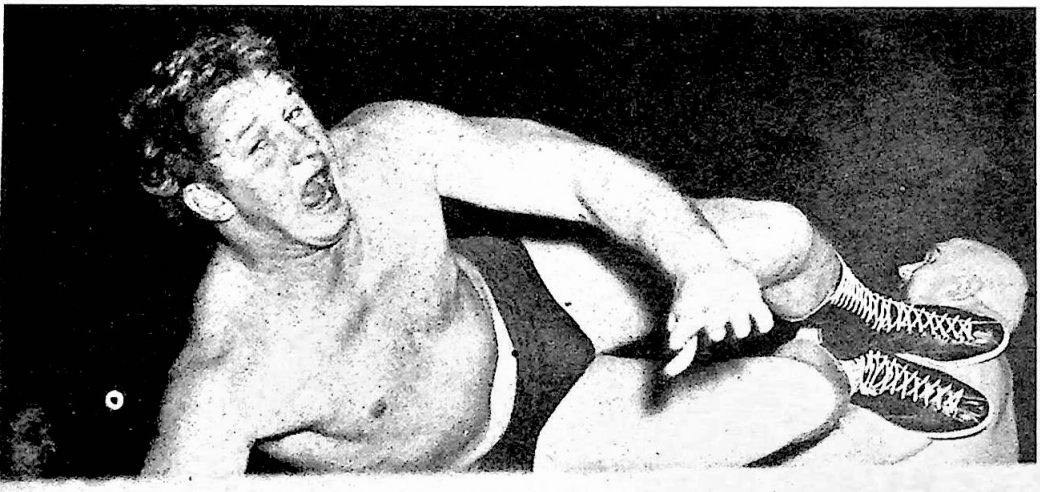
In an interview with Weingeroff, we came to the conclusion that Weingeroff wouldn't think twice about pulling out all stops to help his men win a match.

We also think that the mustachioed leader of this duo has the charm and poise of an angered cobra. Three times during the interview, Weingeroff threatened physical violence to our reporter. The following is the complete, word for word text of the interview.Q: Saul, how do you . . . ?"

"Gentleman Saul" sits quietly by as Kurt gets some help from the ropes to aid his wrist-lock.



A stab in the belly from Saul helps Karl's neckbreaker on Jerry Kozak while (below) Terry Funk's flying dropkick sends Kurt spinning.



"GENTLEMAN SAUL"

A: Just a minute, lady. If you are going to come up here and talk to me, you're going to have to refer to me as I wish. In the future, you will refer to me as Gentleman Saul. If you don't, I'm going to have my boys throw you out of here.

Q: Excuse me. Gentleman Saul, how do you account for the fact that your wrestlers have been disqualified in matches so many times?

A: Well, that's quite simple. The referees were paid off. These guys that sign to meet my boys know what they're going up against. They have to do something to keep from getting killed. My boys have the word to win at all costs, regardless of methods they use.

Q: You have been accused of interfering in their matches to help them win sometimes. It has been said that you sometimes use your cane to hit their opponents when they're losing. Is this true?

A: Absolutely not. People say that because they need an excuse when their favorites are losing. I have never hit anyone to interfere with my boys. They don't need any help. And I don't like the way you said that, girlie. I have a good mind to have you thrown out of here. Anyone who has the gall to imply something like that has no reason to talk to me. I maintain myself as a gentleman at all times and your implications are very insulting. I don't give out interviews to anyone, you know. But your magazine paid me enough to make it worthwhile. But my dignity is not for sale. If you don't stop making accusations like that, you're going to be sorry.

Q: Well, I do not ask my own questions, but rather the ones that my employer tells me to ask. Another thing. You have been challenged by a number of

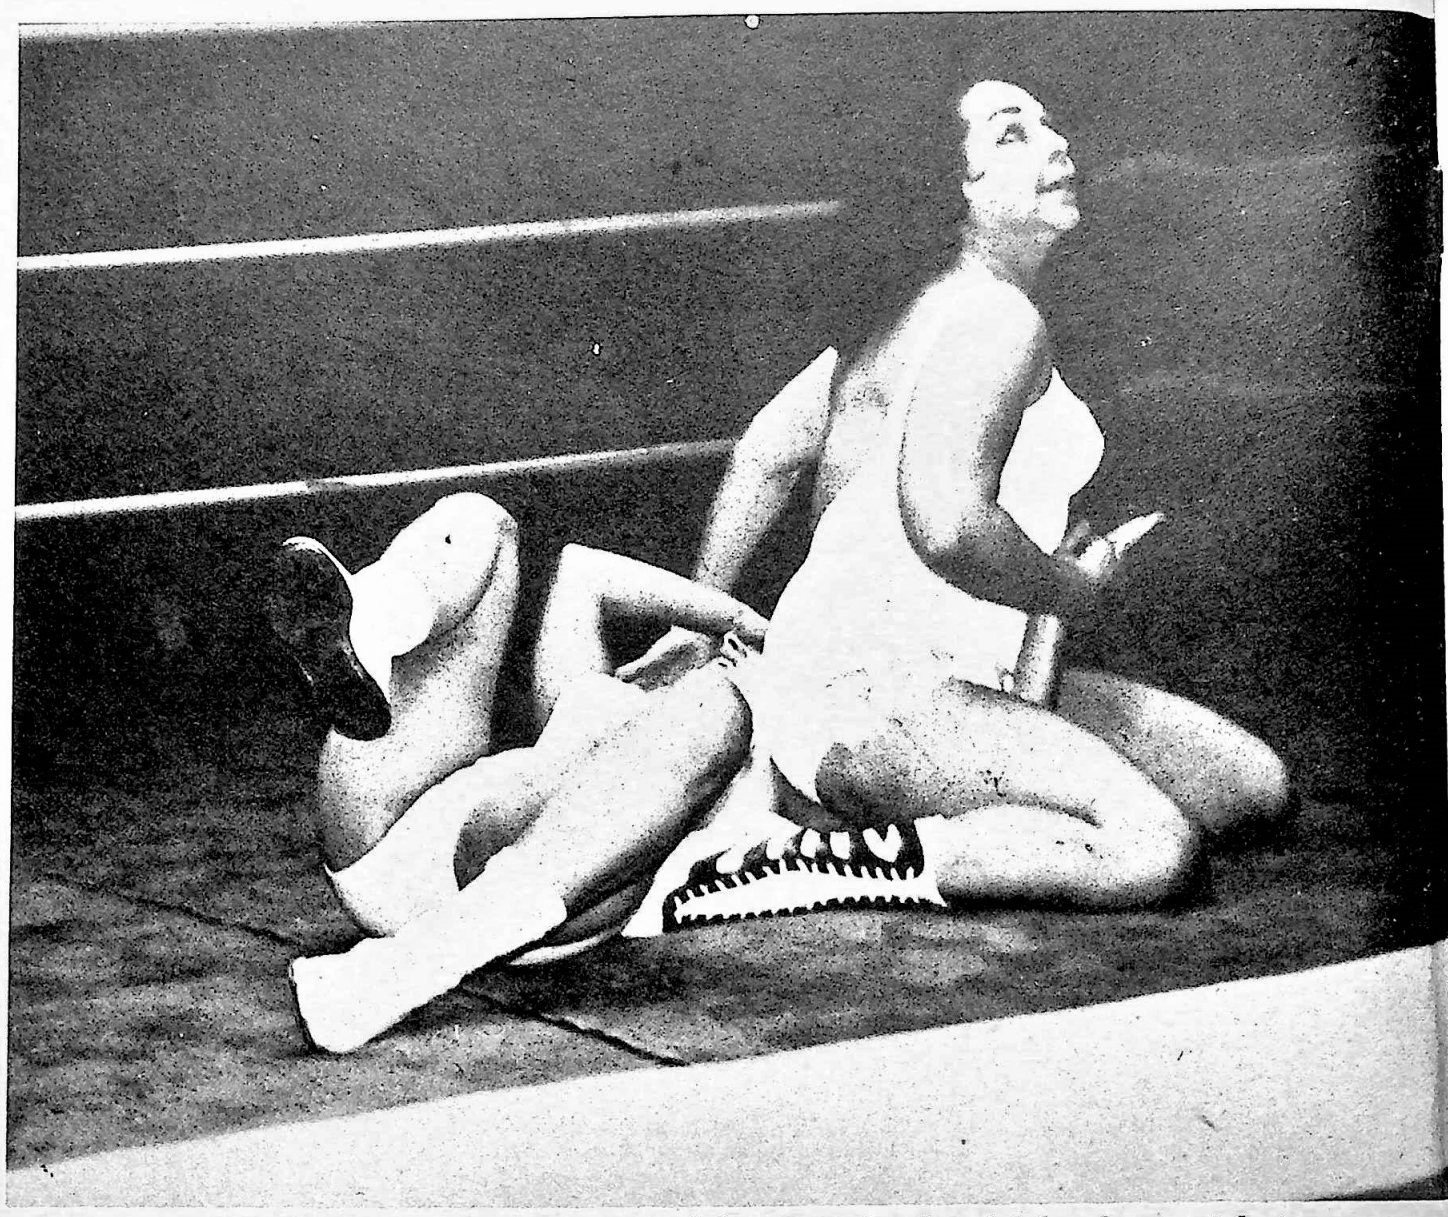
SHE CATS OF THE WEST

Moolah and Boucher thrill California fans

By JEFF WALTON



Who, me? Moolah looks aghast at the referee while choking Betty Boucher. A lady when we spoke to her outside the ring, Moolah is all cat once the bell rings.

"Give her an inch and she'll take a mile," an elderly fan said as he spoke to his friends. "I seen her in Boston years ago. She's a cat pure and simple." The gal in question was none other than Fabulous Moolah.world champion women's wrestler. Tonight Moolah would make her debut in Los Angeles. Instead of going to my press seat, I waited for the Fabulous One by the dressing room door.

To my surprise, in walked a very charming and courteous woman. Even the large crowd didn't seem to recognize her. I introduced myself and after explaining I was from WRESTLING REVUE, I welcomed her to Los Angeles. Moolah sighed as we sat down on the hard wooden bench.

"You know, Jeff," she began, "I'm tired. Oh not of wrestling, heavens no. I've just returned from a tour of Japan and as you can see I'm still the queen bee of wrestling."

Moolah began to relax. Tonight she would again risk her belt against her number one challenger, Betty Boucher. "Before I speak of that Boucher, I've got to tell you an ambition I've had since I started wrestling. I want to wrestle a man!" With this remark I was almost floored.

"Don't get me wrong. I want any male wrestler in the business and I know I can beat any of them. Oh, I've got a few stipulations. A man would not be allowed to keep me in a hold for more than 20 seconds. Also no flying tactics like a drop kick of flying tackle. With these rules I'll beat them all.

Chuckling to myself, I changed the subject back to her opponent, Betty Boucher. "I've got respect for Betty. She's followed me all over the U.S. and Japan. She has one weakness, no brains. If she had any she'd be in my shoes."

"Just watch what I do to her tonight. She'll never be able to put her false eyelashes on again." I thanked Moolah for the interview and went down to my seat.

In the ring, Moolah waltzed over to my corner to proudly display her coveted world belt. Betty just stood in her corner glaring at the ring and Moolah. As referee Gene LaBell called the gals together, Moolah stuck her curvy figure into the ref's face and said, "Come on let's get on with it. I got a date tonight. Boucher screamed "When I get through with you you'll have a date, all right . . . with the hospital!"

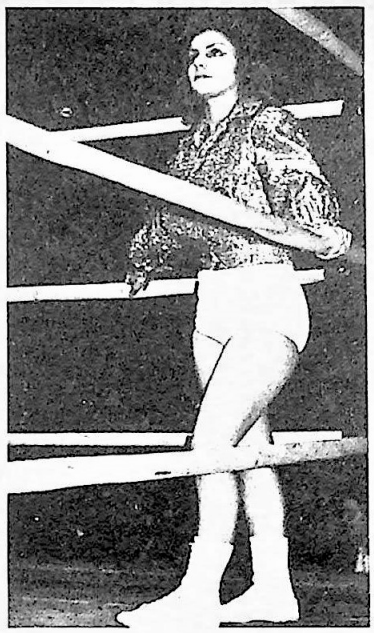
There and then Moolah flew into a rage. She attacked Betty from behind and grabbed her by the hair. A punch to Moolah's midsection made her drop to her knees to beg for mercy. Believe it or not, the bell then rang. Moolah stayed on her knees. Betty asked the crowd what she should do. The crowd said hit her. Betty looked up again. This time Mooolah grabbed her legs and after getting her to the mat, began to choke with her left hand while holding her with the right.

Betty then flipped Moolah over her body and was about to pin her when the champ kicked free, right onto the ref. Moolah aimed a punch at the ref, thinking he was getting a little fresh. Coming to grips Moolah again tugged at the hair and threw Betty across the ring. Betty kicked to her feet and with great ability, drop-kicked the champ, then set her up in the corner for a flying tackle. Twice Betty hit home. But this was to be her undoing.

On the third try Moolah got free and smacked Betty in the neck. The wind was completely knocked out of the redhead. Moolah laughed and her eyes widened with glee. Picking Betty up, she slammed her to the mat with such force it shook the ring. "Who's champ now," Moolah kept saying as she dished out the book to Boucher. Deciding she had enough fun for one evening, Moolah caught Betty in a rolling cradle for the three count.

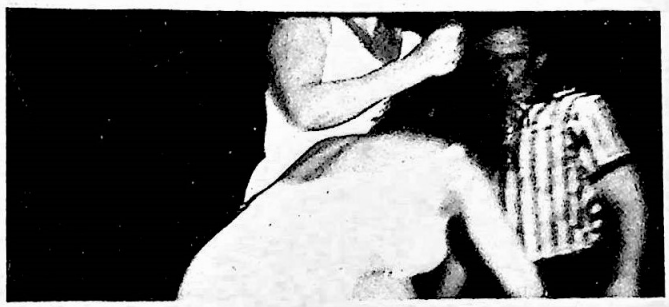
Gene LaBell, the ref, however, was mad at the unnecessary punishment Moolah had heaped upon Betty. Moolah walked over to him and clipped him on the jaw. With a thud Gene fell to the mat and Moolah grabbed her belt and left with haste. Betty got to her feet and helped Gene to his.

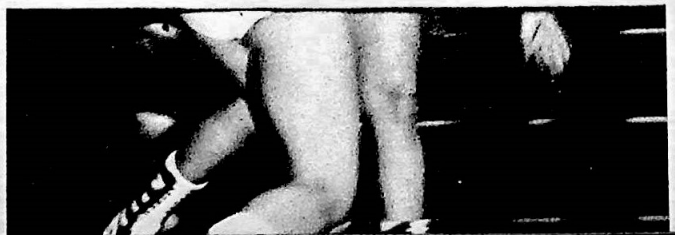
Yes, Moolah is a real she cat, all right. Maybe her dream to wrestle men might come true soon. One thing is for certain: she is the champion among the women. If given the chance, she might be champion among men, too!



Moolah and Betty pose for our camera before the battle that thrilled the Los Angeles fans.

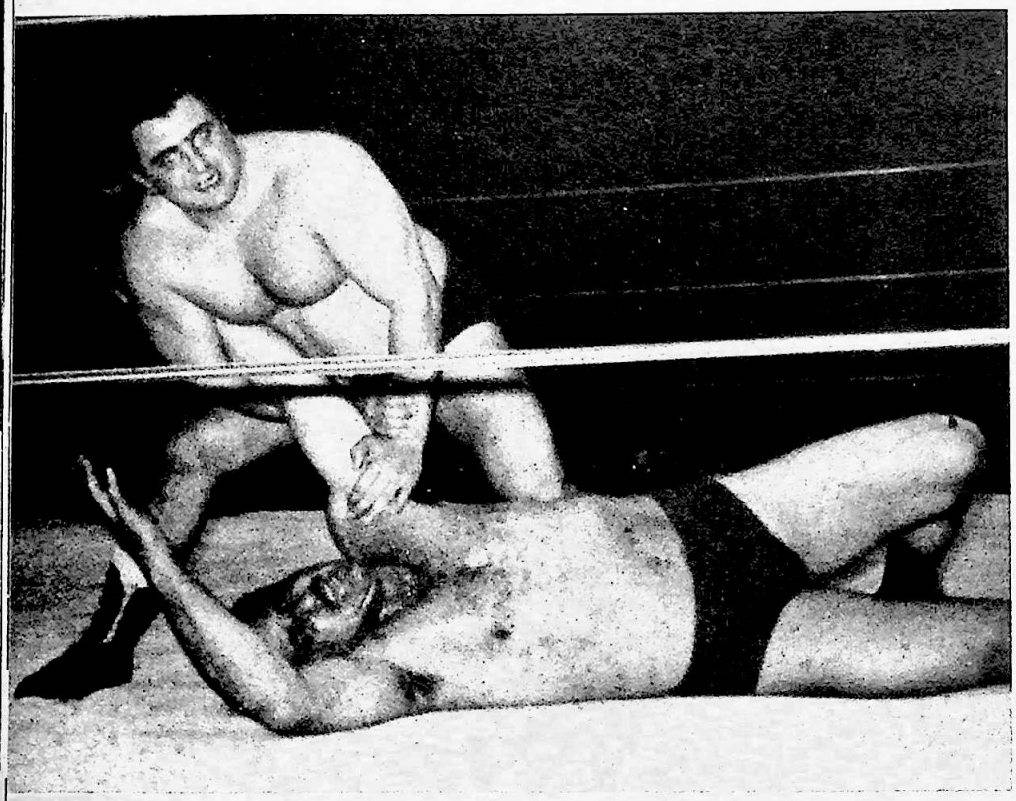
Flying high, the comely redhead has Moolah trapped in a corner as referee Gene LaBell watches the action. Below, Moolah gives out with a two-fisted attack against Betty.

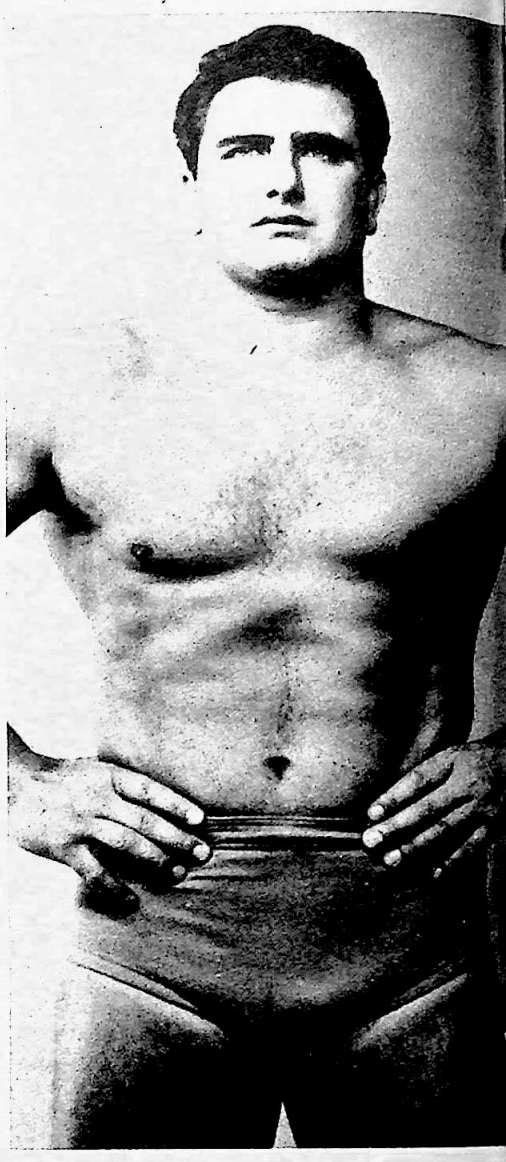




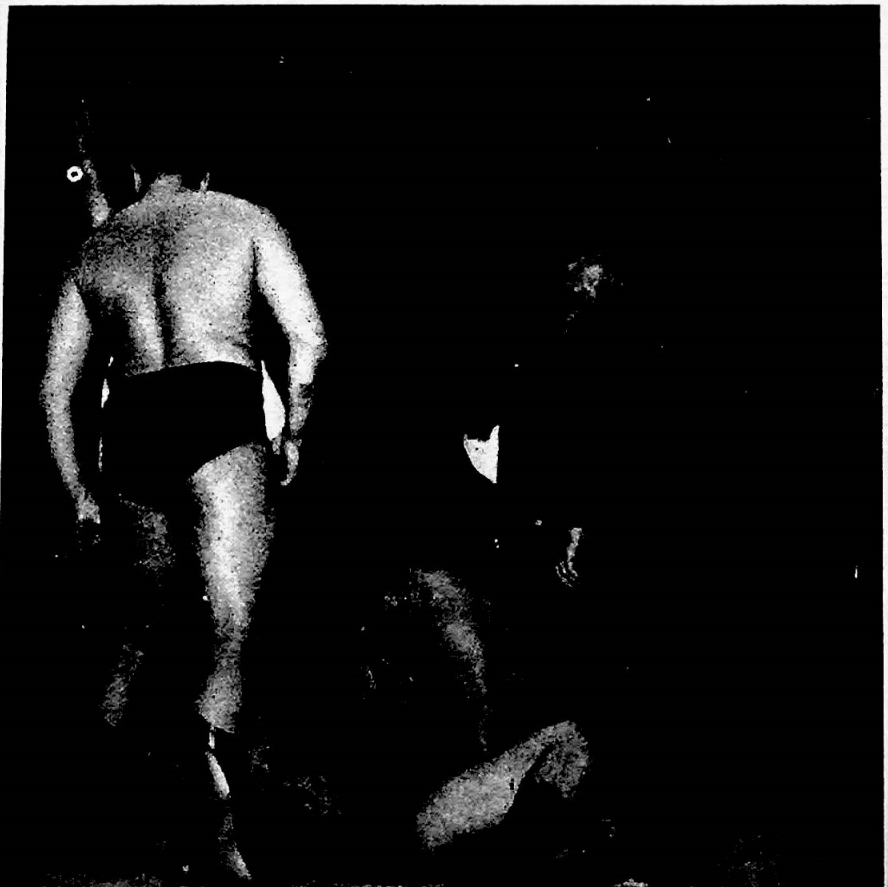
Cousin of Bruno Sammartino is a star in his own right

THE NEW





(Above), Tony's hated rival, Baron Scicluna, is caught in an armlock. Below, Tony and Spiros Arion come to the aid of a fallen Bruno Sammartino, the aftermath of a Sammartino-Gorilla Monsoon brawl.



Pugliese has become a favorite with the fans wherever he has appeared coast to coast.

In less than one year, Antonio Pugliese, the 27-year-old native of Abruzzi, Italy underwent a metamorphosis from a good wrestler to a great one.

Ask the handsome six-footer who he thanks for the extensive improvements made in the last twelve months and he will tell you, "My cousin Bruno." Question him as to who is the greatest wrestler active and he will give you the same answer. It does not take long to realize that Sammartino is Antonio's idol. And rightly so.

It was Bruno who brought Tony to this country from Italy, taught him his secrets of body building and wrestling, and launched the 245-pounder on a phenomenal mat career that has taken him through America, Japan, Europe, and Canada. Without the aid of the World Wide Wrestling Federation Champion, he would have been just another promising wrestler in a country where the sport was rapidly dying.

From the day he started grappling on the East Coast, the fans took to Tony just as they had taken to his cousin more than three years before. More than one opponent, however, resented him due to his relationship with Sammartino. When asked one evening why he disliked Pugliese, Doctor Jerry Graham was heard to have snapped, "Because he's Bruno's cousin!" But Tony proved to everyone that he had no intention of hiding behind Sammartino.

After a few preliminaries, he began meeting top opponents and scoring surprising wins over such notables as Bill Miller, The Beast, Baron Scicluna, Prince laukea, and a host of others.

Antonio tries to hold no grudges outside of the ring, but it is common knowledge that he has a personal hatred for Baron Scicluna, the 260-pound Maltese terror. During the heat of a battle last year, the Mad Maltese booted Tony in the chest and broke several ribs. Doctors advised him to take at least a month off in order to heal the injured ribs. However, the physicians did not know Tony Pugliese. In less than one week, he was back on the circuits with a thick piece of tape over the injured ribs.

Needless to say, one of the first men he was paired with was Scicluna. Tony blasted the Baron all over the ring, but the wily Scicluna knew the weakness of his foe. To the shock of the crowded arena. Michele maneuvered Tony into a corner and ripped off the protective bandage. Pugliese was utterly helpless as the Baron hammered away with punches and kicks to the tender spot. For this, Scicluna found himself on the wrong end of a disqualification and penalized with a stiff fine. After being assisted to the dressing room, Tony was examined by a commission doctor. Luckily, there was no further damage, luckily for Scicluna, that is. Antonio and Michele have clashed many times since with Pugliese having the edge in matches won. This is one feud that is one hundred per cent legitimate.

Antonio has also gained some fame in tag team matches. Pairing with the Blond Bomber, Johnny Valentine, he captured the World Wide Wrestling Federation Tag Team Championship from The Miller Brothers, Bill and Danny. The duo worked exceptionally well for a while until, apparently for no particular reason, Valentine turned on his partner in a title defense. What started out as Pugliese and Valentine versus Scicluna and Smasher Sloan, terminated with Valentine, Scicluna, and Sloan opposing Tony. The fight resulted in the loss of the championship and a few bruises for Tony. Pugliese vowed vengeance and Valentine wisely left the area.

Antonio gained a measure of revenge when he teamed with the Golden Greek, Spiros Arion. The popular combination mowed down all rivals, forced Scicluna and Smasher into a title defense, and whipped the champs in two straight falls to capture the coveted title.

"After the incident with Valentine, weren't you a bet hisitant about trusting another partner?" I asked Antonio recently.

"No, not really. Unlike Valentine, Spiros and I hit it off both in and out of the ring. The first time I tagged with Spiros I knew that he was the perfect partner. Our styles seemed to blend so well and we both carried our share of the load, which is the secret of a successful team."

Their reign was interrupted in July, 1967 when Tony decided to branch out and win fame in other parts of the world. Touring Japan, he wrestled five or six nights a week for more than a month and faced all the tough Japanese matmen including The Giant Baba and teamed with the late George "Catalina" Drake.

Concerning the Japanese fans, Pugliese said, "They're the best in the world and their hospitality is Number One. Bless them all."

After Japan, Tony made a three-month junket to the West Coast and came narrowly close to capturing the Western Stern Wrestling Alliance version of the World Championship held by Buddy Austin. Pugliese had the villainous Austin ready for the kill when the bell sounded, signalling a draw. Buddy admitted after the bout that Tony had given him a real battle.

Pugliese returned to his old stomping grounds, the East Coast, the first of the year. Mat buffs spotted various changes in the wrestling style of the Italian. He has perfected two new holds which are employed as the coup de grace.

After setting his man up for the fall, Tony delivers an ax-like blow to the neck of his victim. The hold is similar to the skullcracker used extensively by Johnny Valentine. Maybe the alliance with Valentine was profitable, after all.

The second maneuver consists of mounting the top rope and literally knocking the wind out of his prostrate foe with a flying leap to the midsection. These two holds,

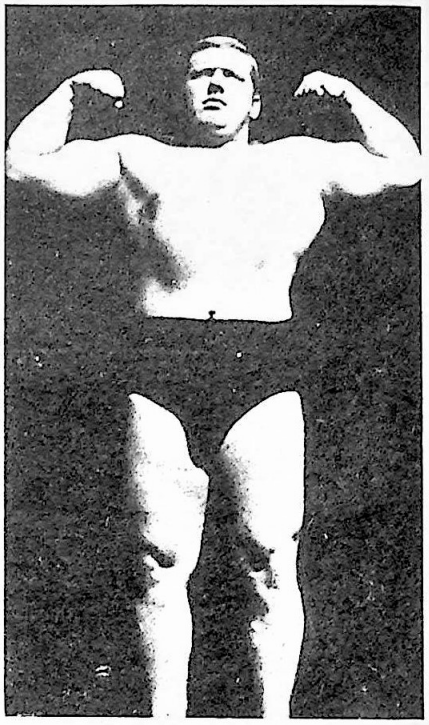
ANOTHER REPORT ON FLADERER

South African wrestler continues to grow both in dize and stature.



Fladerer about to use Rudolf Kamp as the instrument in a pile-driver.

Last year a young wrestler from Johannesburg, South Africa, Peter Fladerer came to our attention. Peter was just starting to move into international competition after having established himself as one of the best of the newcomers to the mat sport in his native land.

Well, in the past year Peter, along with his good friend and teacher, Nikolai Zigulinoff of Bulgaria, traveled to Europe where they wrestled in Bavaria in Germany, Vienna in Austria and Zurich in Switzerland. Fladerer stepped up in class and more than held his own against some of Europe's best grapplers.

It was a successful trip in every way for the youngster from South Africa.

Peter has since returned to Johannesburg where he is busy wrestling and also training. He has been working steadily at body building and weight lifting and now is able to do 500 pounds in the squats and bench press 450 pounds. He has built his weight up to 225 pounds and soon will be moving out of the junior heavyweight division into a full-fledged heavyweight.

Peter will be returning for another tour of Europe this coming fall and hopes to visit France and England and soon he will be heading for Australia and then, he hopes, the United States.

So you wrestling fans keep your eyes peeled for this crowd-pleasing youngster when he comes your way, and remember the name, Peter Fladerer.

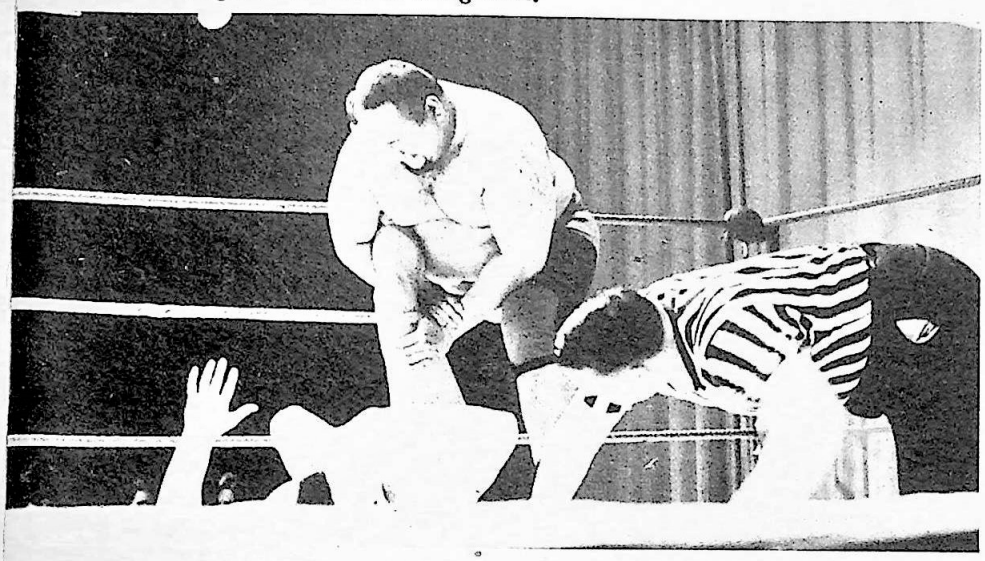
ARAKAWA AND MOTO PARTNERS WHO THINK AND FEEL ALIKE

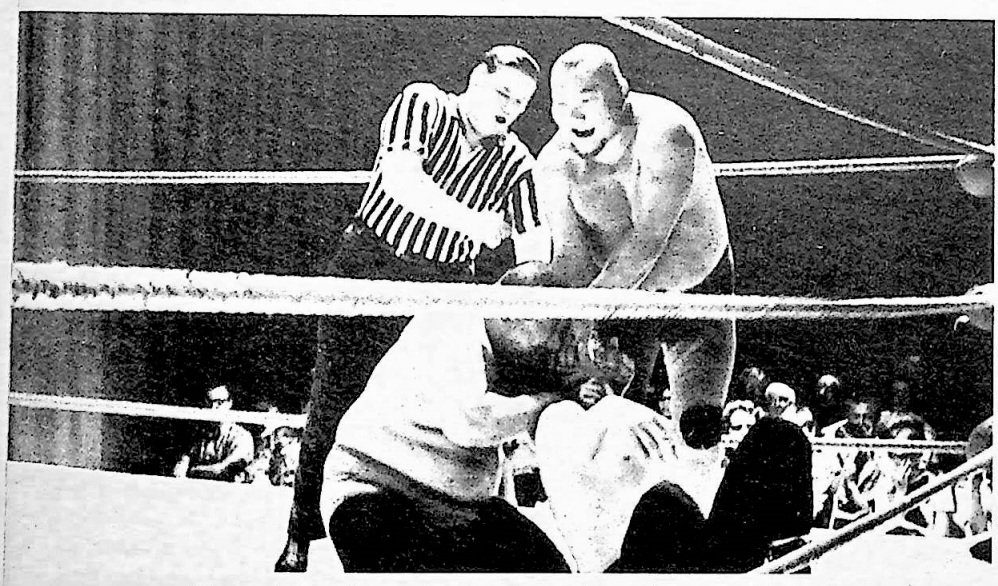
By NORMAN KIETZER

Dr. Moto and Mitsu Arakawa proudly display the Tag-Team trophy that they won when they defeated Wilbur Snyder and Pat O'Connor last year in Chicago, before a large crowd.

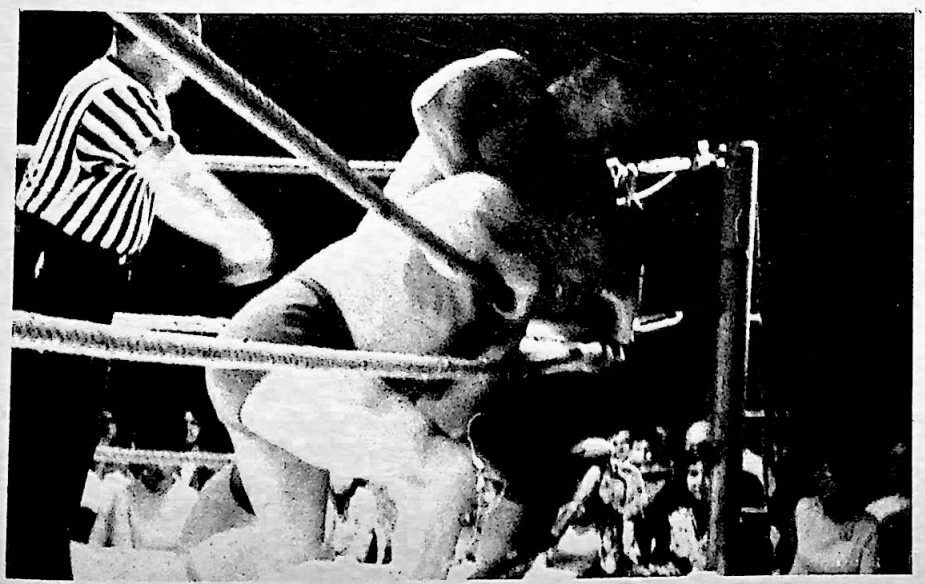
Japanese grapplers both believe the end justifies the means.

Moto uses his great strength to force Johnny War Eagle to submit to a leg-lock.





The referee has a hard time when the boys decide to forgo the rules. Above, Kenny Jay is on the receiving end, and below, War Eagle is given a bit too much rope by Arakawa.



It was around the middle of October in 1967. The scene was the International Amphitheatre in Chicago. Promoter Bob Luce had another capacity crowd. Just a few weeks before, Larry Henning and Harley Race had been forced to vacate the A.W.A. world tag team championship reluctantly, because Henning's leg had been broken by Verne Gagne. After a series of elimination matches throughout the country, two teams emerged as the top contenders. Promoter Bob Luce matched them to determine a new pair of world tag team champions.

In one corner were two of the most popular wrestlers in mat history. Both men were individual stars and both had held the world's heavyweight championship. The senior member of the team is without a doubt the greatest wrestler ever to come out of New Zealand. It was more than a decade ago when the late Tony Stecher brought Pat O'Connor from New Zealand to the United States. Since then O'Connor has won almost every important wrestling title. His partner was a former football star from Van Nuys, Calif. a great pro football star as well as a great pro wrestler, Wilbur Snyder. The team of Snyder and O'Connor had been very successful in the past few months leading up to the elimination match.

In the other corner were the All-Asian international tag team champions, Dr. Moto and Mitsu Arakawa. These two oriental mat greats had left a string of victims across Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio to reach this final elimination match.

Mitsu Arakawa is a rather small man as professional wrestlers go. He weighs only about 230 pounds. He grew up around Hiroshima, Japan. He was a boy at the end of World War II and he remembers many friends from his early years who were killed by American bombs. As soon as he was old enough he became a professional wrestler. He has one goal and that is to annihilate all Americans. His hatred of everything American is just as intense today as when he was a boy in Japan. He is skilled in all the vicious Oriental hand-to-hand combat methods. A master of judo, karate, and kung fu, he uses whatever he can get away with in a match. He will stop at nothing to win a match and he often seems immune to pain.

Dr. Moto is slightly heavier than his partner. He weighs in at 245 punds. He comes from Yokohama, Japan, where he had a childhood similar to Mitsu's. They first teamed up in Japan where they defeated all opponents. They soon were recognized as the tag team champions of Japan. They went on from there to become All-Asian and then International champions.

The referee signaled for the elimination match to begin. But both Arakawa and Moto were in the ring. Arakawa was clad in bright red trunks under which he wore black knee length wrestling tights with bright red knee patches. Moto wore the opposite combination with black knee patches on his red knee length tights and black trunks.

Both Arakawa and Moto took small packets of salt from inside their tights. They emptied the salt into their hands and tossed some of it in each of four directions. Then they lifted first one leg and then the other high into the air and slammed their feet down into the mat. They were following the ancient custom of their Japanese ancestors. Before the ancient sumo wrestlers of Japan have followed this custom for centuries. Many oriental grapplers in America style wrestling also follow this ancient custom.

The match was typical of the Jap's previous matches. They all but killed their opponents. Even the combined great experience of O'Connor and Snyder was not enough to cope with the Orientals' attack that night in Chicago. The fans were 100 percent against the Japs, but they won another victory, and with the victory came the world's tag team championship.

From there Arakawa and Moto traveled to Indianapolis, Ft. Wayne, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Moline, Winnipeg, and throughout the midwest where they have defended their title for over six months. Everywhere the fans are against them and everywhere they win. A match with Arakawa and Moto defending their title is sure to sell out any wrestling arena in the country.

The Japanese wrestlers' attack is something to behold. Both of them wrestle barefoot. Arakawa has built up his feet so that they are like pieces of steel. He can deliver the deadly karate thrust equally well with either hand or either foot. Dr. Moto proudly proclaims That he has a Ph. D. in the science of karate. Karate is now illegal in most states because the wrestling alliances have found that it causes many serious and permanent injuries, but this doesn't stop Dr. Moto.

He is a master at maneuvering his opponent into a position where the referee cannot see what he is doing and then delivering the lethal karate thrust. It can best be described as follows. He hits his opponent in the throat with his steel fingers. Several wrestlers have been seriously injured by this and one recent opponent was unable to talk for two weeks after falling victim to Dr. Moto.

Mitsu also specializes in the claw hold. The claw can be applied to the face, the arm, or to the leg with devastating results. Mitsu, however, uses the most deadly claw hold in wrestling. The stomach claw is a legal wrestling submission hold. However, Mitsu uses it in a questionable manner. Recently Mitsu had his opponent on the mat near his corner. Dr. Moto climbed to the top rope and jumped onto the helpless man's stomach, Mitsu quickly followed this with a stomach claw.

Even when the wrestler gave up immediately, Mitsu took three minutes to break the hold. Dr. Moto entered the ring and kept the referee occupied while Mitsu continued to apply pressure after the man had given up. Needless to say, the wrestler was out of action for several weeks with internal injuries. Moto and Arakawa had another pair of victims.

Moto and Arakawa are thinking of heading back to Asia with their title. They have received an offer from a Japanese promoter that would make them enough money so that they could retire for life.

Mitsu said in a recent interview, "Sure we will take our title back to Japan. We are very honorable men and in our country we would be treated like gods. We defeat the enemy of Japan. Japan may have lost the war, but we will defeat America. Right now we are going to stay in America until we have milked the country dry. If the fans here are foolish enough to believe that some of the tag teams from this decadent country can beat us and are willing to give us the money we get in matches, we will stay here. Just think how much money we will take out of this country when we finally return to Japan."

Dr. Moto added, "Look what America has for tag teams. They have a couple of old drunks—Crusher & Bruiser. Could those two half wits beat the great Mitsu and the great Moto? Luke Brown & Igor are rated so high. Those two big idiots are too dumb to know how to wrestle. Parks and Gilbert are a couple of muscle builders, and they know almost nothing about wrestling. Geigel and Brown, Savage & Haggerty, Dr. X. & Vachone—those are the best of a bad lot. American people are stupid to think that there is any team in the world that can defeat us."

Dr. Moto and Mitsu Arakawa are on top of the wrestling world. They are the most successful tag team to come out of Asia in many years. They feel confident that they will rule as champions for many years. However, several of the top promoters in the country have let it be known privately that they are not too happy with the champions. The Wrestling Alliance has received many complaints and would like to see a new team of champions. There is a rumor that two of the top wrestlers in this country who normally don't wrestle in tag matches are thinking of teaming up against the Japs.

Dr. Moto and Mitsu Arakawa could well meet their match one of these days, and without a doubt there will be a standing room only crowd on hand to see them lose their title. When they lose the title, and we're sure they will, the wrestling fans of the United States will be united in feeling that it couldn't happen to two more deserving men. But until that happens, Mitsu and Moto will continue to take American money back to Japan. The American fans may hate them, but Arakawa and Moto could end up as millionaires as a result of that hatred..

A corner turnbuckle is a very handy weapon to bang the head of an opponent upon, one of the many tricks employed by A & M.

TV announcer Marty O'Neill listens as the Oriental terrors describe what they have in store for a future rival.

The jeers of the crowd are nothing new to Moto and Arakawa. They can't understand why the American fans hate them.

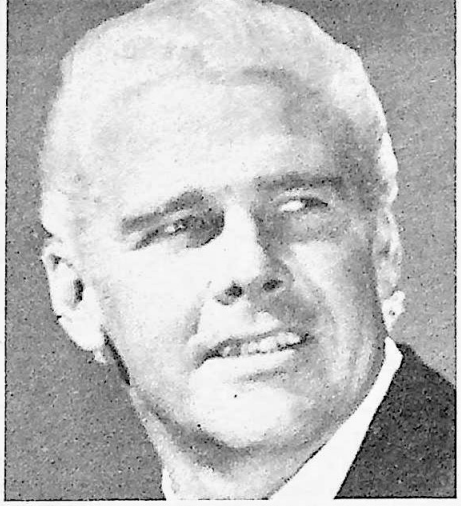
BEAUREGARDE-

Glamor Boy of the mat is colorful

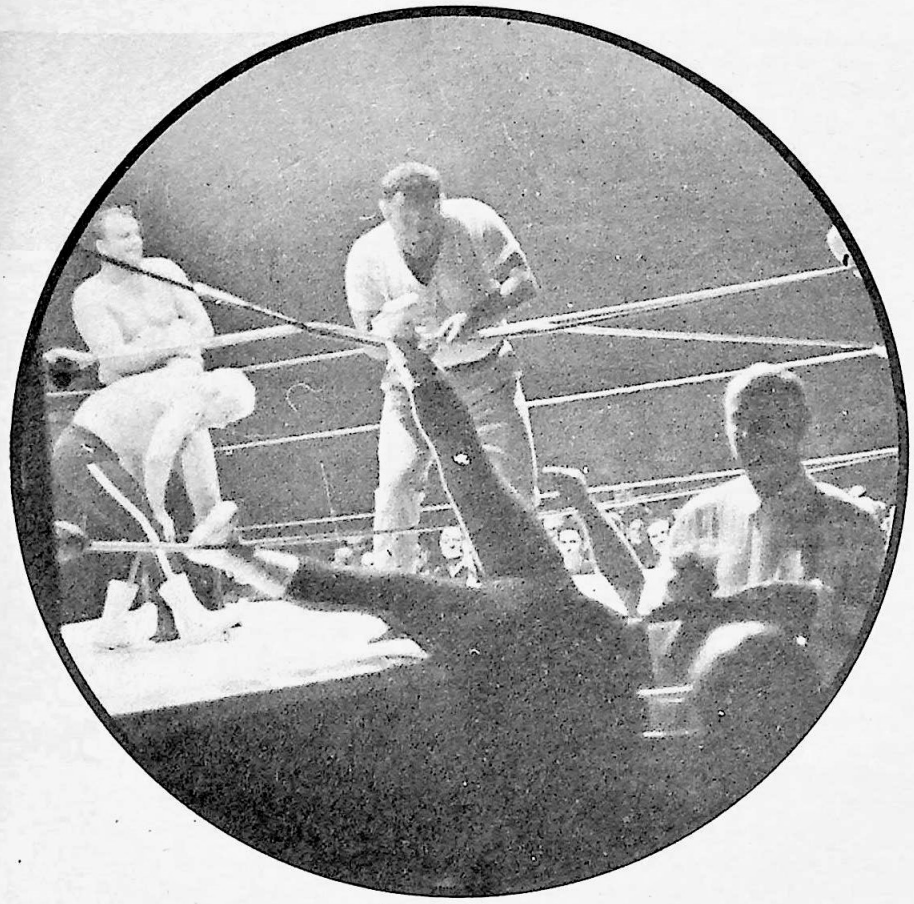


Isn't he a doll? He thinks so.

The painful and deadly "surfboard" hold, a favorite of Beau's, is clamped on Luigi Macera. Dig those crazy trunks and shoes sported by Beau.

A LIVING DOLL! So He Says

in and out of the ring



Wild goings on as Beau and Mayne clashed with Crusher and Borne.

"Who's the most colorful wrestler on the pro scene today? Many West Coast fans say it's Larry Beauregarde Pitchford, who's billed as "The Sensation of the Nation."

Beauregarde, who isn't exactly a favorite with the fans, but who does create enough interest to make them return week after week, is a 200-pound blondie who excites fans three ways—with his muscles, with his skill, and with an unusual brand of ring havoc.

The "sensational one" recently teamed with Lonnie Mayne, a wild ring terror who broke with Tough Tony Borne after they lost their world tag team championship back to Pepper Gomez and Pedro Morales, whom they had defeated for the title earlier. Beauregarde and Mayne's reason for teaming up is simple—they want that championship back.

"We've decided to stop at nothing until we get those dirty wetbacks in the ring," says Beauregarde. To date they have proved those words true. An example of how they live up to this vow: Mayne signed for a grudge match with ex-partner Tony Borne two weeks after he and Beau became partners. Tough Tony was about to cannon-ball Mayne from the top rope to win the second fall and the match when suddenly Beauregarde streaked from the crowd of 8,500 fans and helped his beaten partner send Borne to the hospital for a week. It took six other wrestlers to save Borne from worse punishment. Since that incident such tactics have become common for this blood-hungry team.

While he can wrestle clean and with skill, Beau loves to tear his rivals to bits. He is just crazy about the sight of blood.

But getting back to the muscle aspect of Beauregarde, it can be said without fabrication that the 5-foot nine-inch blue-eyed Beau is as solid as the iron weights he has used over the previous six years to develop his body. He won Mr. Hawaii and Mr. University of Hawaii physique titles in 1964 and continues today the five-days-a-week weightlifting schedule that prepared him for those contests.

To understand the skill aspect of Beauregarde's wrestling abilities, we have to turn the clock back a few thousand rotations—20 years will do. At that time Larry was a grade school student in Lima, Ohio. He was the world's smallest big wrestling fan. His idol was Killer Kowalski, a man he has since met in the ring. Says Beau, "I saw Kowalski on TV way back before I was allowed to cross the street by myself. After watching Killer and other stars perform I would dream of being a wrestler myself. I began to study the different holds then, but even during my wildest dream I never really believed I would see the day when I would be a wrestling star."

Larry was almost right in thinking he would never become a pro grappler. Still sold on the sport when he entered high school, Larry's plans to join the school team were discouraged by his mother who believed wrestling was too dangerous. This was a disheartening blow to young Pitchford, but he managed to "suffer through" high school by participating in other sports. He is proud of the basketball scoring records he set while a preper, but would quickly trade those memories for the wrestling he missed.

Following graduation Beau and a step-brother, Francis McFarland, "bugged out" and traveled to newly unionized Hawaii. Wages saved after a year on a construction crew gave Pitchford enough money to attend the University of Hawaii, it was there that he finally got his long awaited opportunity to wrestle. Once Larry did get on the mat he made the most of it. During his second year of college he won the 50th state's 181-pound title, and compiled an outstanding record during the rest of his collegiate career.

Wrestling also led to muscle training. Weight lifting proved to be a rewarding adventure in two important ways. First it increased his weight and strength. When Larry first set foot on tropical Hawaii in 1960, he tipped the scales at only 150 pounds. After two years of lifting he was 30 pounds heavier, then by his senior year at the University he weighed in at 200 pounds and was a heavyweight matman.

The second important thing Larry gained through weight lifting was an opportunity. While preparing for college matches, Beau would often train at Dean's weight and health studio in Honolulu, a gym patronized by many of the island's professional wrestlers. After befriending him, they gave the handsome Pitchford tips to use during his college career and after graduation they helped him break into pro grappling. "Dean Higuchi and Ed Francis were two guys that helped me the most," recalls Beauregarde. "They were very instrumental in getting me started on the island (Honolulu) and I will always be in their debt."

Now we see how Beauregarde developed such an outstanding physique and how he became such a competant matman. Now to understand his wild ring antics we have but to ask Beau. His answer: "Life is too restricting today. There is a law governing every move a man makes. When I wrestle I forget all the limitations of everyday life, I become free. If I want to kick my opponent in the face, I kick him. If I want to spit on a fan, Then I spit. And if I feel like just wrestling a good clean match, then I might even do that for a few minutes."

But even a few minutes of clean wrestling seems improbable now that Beauregarde has teamed with Mayne. "Why wrestle clean," asks Mayne "when you can win quicker by being dirty. Besides, the average two-bit fan wants blood. I give it to them!" Beau has accepted Mayne's philosophy.

An additional arguing point often used by those who claim Beauregarde to be the most exciting grappler is his exceptional dress. Inside the ropes Beau sports either psychedelic, striped, or flowered tights, special handmade wrestling shoes and a sparkling red mini-robe that is removed before the action begins. Dressed as such, Beau is a complete contrast to Mayne, who " . . . don't give a damn about fancy duds—I'm only at the arena to destroy my opponents."

Beau and a lovely fan pose for the camera. It is hard to tell who is the prettiest.

Outside the ring the princely Mr. Pitchford rivals Hollywood's best dressed stars. He has over 20 extraordinary suits of every conceivable color and style that were hand-made for him by a tailor in Manila. Then, to top it all off, Beauregarde is a master hair stylist. He sets his own curls and keeps his hair trimmed so efficiently that it is uncommon to ever see one of the Beau's blonde locks out of place. Such primping is another contradiction of his partner's habits.

But, even though they differ on such ideas as dress, the duo of Beauregarde and Mayne is in 100 percent agreement on one thing—they want to be known as the world's best tag-team. "We are the best now," each says confidently, "it's only a matter of time before everyone else will know it!"

Maybe the world's best, maybe not. But one thing is for sure, Mayne is one of the world's meanest and Beauregarde one of, if not the, most exciting wrestlers around today. Watch out Morales and Gomez, you have a pair of blond-haired tigers on your tail!

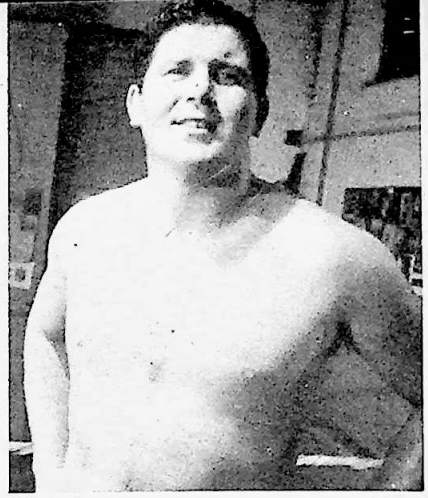
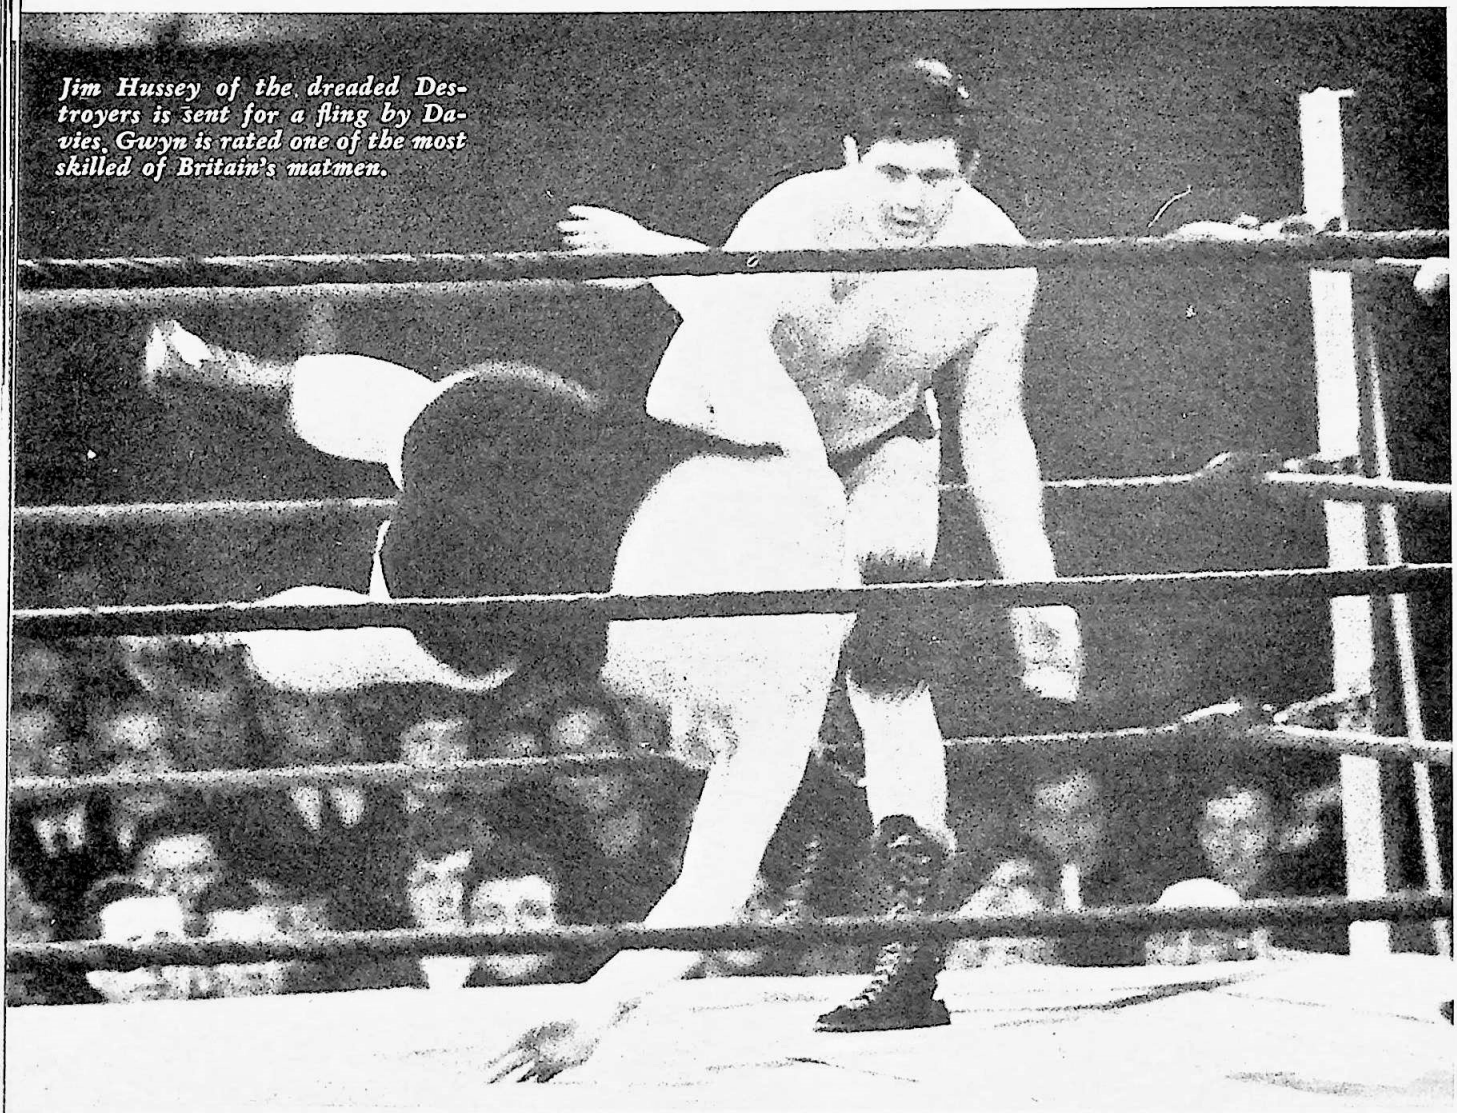
GWYN DAVIES

Welsh champion is star of movies and television, and idol of millions

By BRIAN G. DIXON



Gwyn is an idol to the fans in his native Wales.



Jim Hussey of the dreaded Destroyers is sent for a fling by Davies. Gwyn is rated one of the most skilled of Britain's matmen.

One of the most respected names in the heavyweight wrestling division in Great Britain for some years now has been that of the tall Welsh heavyweight champion, Gwyn Davies. For several years Gwyn has topped wrestling bills all over Britain and the Continent. He has gradually moved up the list of title contenders until now, he is ready to enter the world ratings.

Gwyn Davies was born in Wales in May, 1938, into a sporting family. His father was Ken Davies, the famous Rugby League player and grappler, and naturally he wanted Gwyn to follow in his footsteps. From an early age he encouraged Gwyn to join in all forms of sporting activity, taking him along to the local gym each morning. Soon Gwyn made a great name for himself Count Bartelli is presented with a championship belt by the author after he defeated Davies.

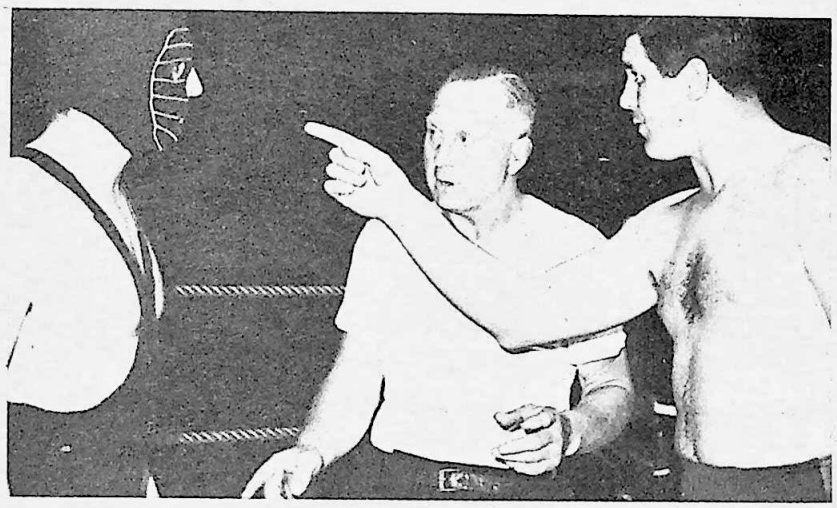
It was no easy task for Gwyn to escape from the backbreaking hold of Nagaskie.

Gwyn showed his stamina in his brawl with the masked terror, Nagaskie.



Kendo Nagaskie and Davies have clashed a number of times, but neither has proven to be the master of the other as yet.

in Rugby League circles. His tall athletic frame was ideal for the rugby field, and after turning professional he was offered places in such famous teams as Leeds, Wigan, and Wakefield Trinity, all top league clubs. However, like his father, the grappling bug had caught young Gwyn, and it wasn't long before he decided to join the ranks of the professional wrestlers. He had had four years' hard amateur experience training at the Carrah Sporting Club, and in 1955 was given his first professional bout at the St. James Hall, Newcastle.

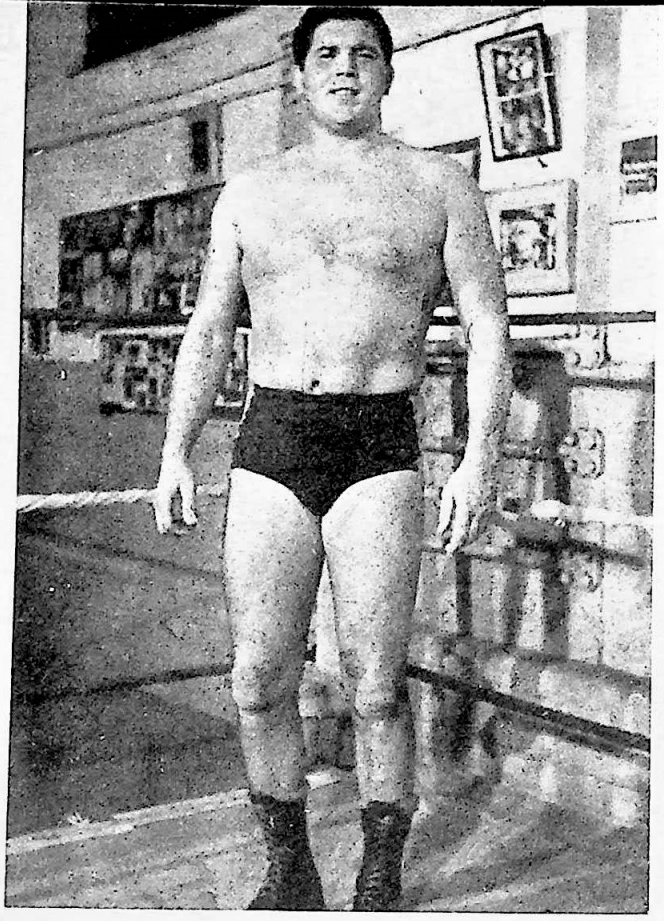
Since then Gwyn has met just about every possible opponent, gaining victories over the top rated men in his division.

Early in his career he and his father teamed up to make the Davies' tag team, and were remarkably successful, they were an ideal pair with almost perfect timing. However, Ken Davies decided that the time had come to hang up his boots, and he has since let Gwyn to carry on the family tradition.

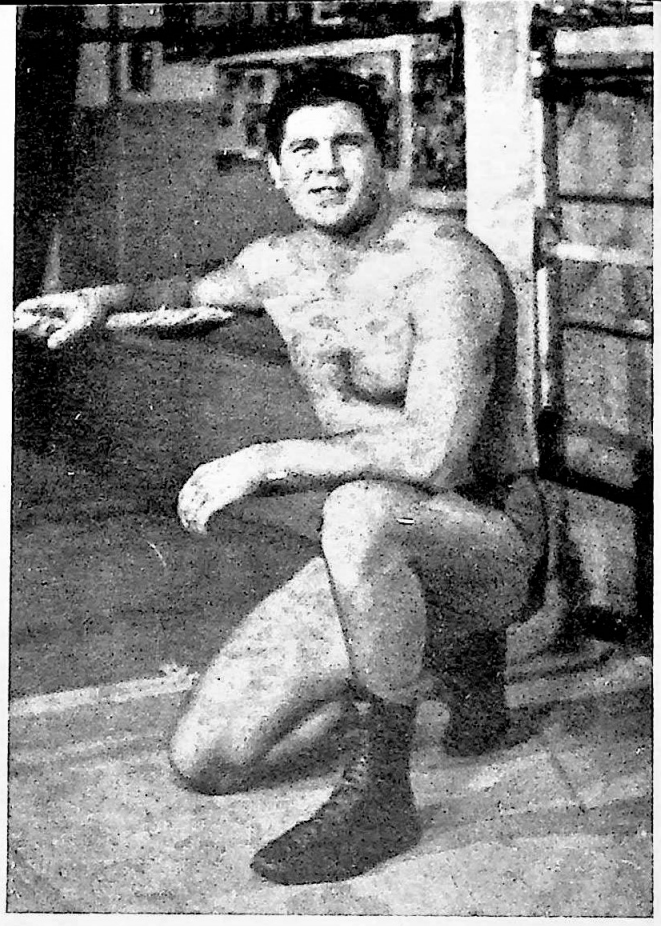
This he has done with flying colours. With his dark good looks and fine physique, Gwyn is a "wanted" man in both the wrestling and cinema world, for as well as being a top wrestling personality, and favourite of many television fans, he is also a film star. After a recent part in the film Mystery Island, he has been offered an average of three contracts a month to sign for film parts, acting with some of the most respected names in the cinema world. However, he prefers the wrestling business, and although he would very much like to make more film appearances, his wrestling engagements take him all over the country, and leave him little spare time.

In his 13 years as a professional, Gwyn has met most of the international stars in his weight, and most of the bouts have ended in victory for the Welsh giant. He has appeared in France, Australia, Spain and Germany and proved to be a great favourite with the Continental audiences.

There have been many highlights in his career since 1955, but one of the most memorable bouts was in 1959, when he met the German, Herman Iffland. In this battle of the giants, both men gave as good as they got, and the bout came to a sudden and sad end when Iffland knee-dropped his opponent, who ended up in a Leeds hospital where he stayed for nine months with a severe spine injury. Doctors advised Gwyn not to wrestle again, but he was determined to continue, and strong will power, combined with hard training, brought him back to peak condition and into the ring again. He re-entered the title ratings, and finally took the Welsh heavyweight crown from Sandy Orford,



The powerful Davies stands 6 foot 5 inches, making him one of the tallest as well as one of the best in the British Isles.



Ruggedness as well as skill comes from long hard hours of training and Gwyn is one of the most religious gym workers of today's grapplers.

A handsome smile and a pleasing personality are two big reasons for the popularity of Gwyn.

who has since retired.

Later in his career, the clash between Davies and George Gordienko, the powerful Canadian, was such that it has since become a classic in wrestling history, and although it took place some five years ago, it is still as clear in the Welshman's memory as if it were yesterday, and he has nothing but praise for Gordienko.

During 1965 there were many changes in the heavyweight title in Britain. Billy Joyce held the title at first, and both Davies and Yorkshireman Albert Wall were pressing hard for title bouts. Wall's chance came first and when the Doncaster Destroyer beat the champion and took the belt, Gwyn started pushing his claim. He was granted a title match with Wall at Nottingham in September. With not only the title but a substantial side stake to be won, both superbly fit men battled it out. Eventually, Davies grabbed the winning fall and took the title and the coveted Lord Mountevans belt. For some months Gwyn retained the championship, but he finally lost it to Billy Joyce, who in turn lost it to Bill Robinson, the present holder, along with the European title. Davis was greatly disappointed at losing the title, and would

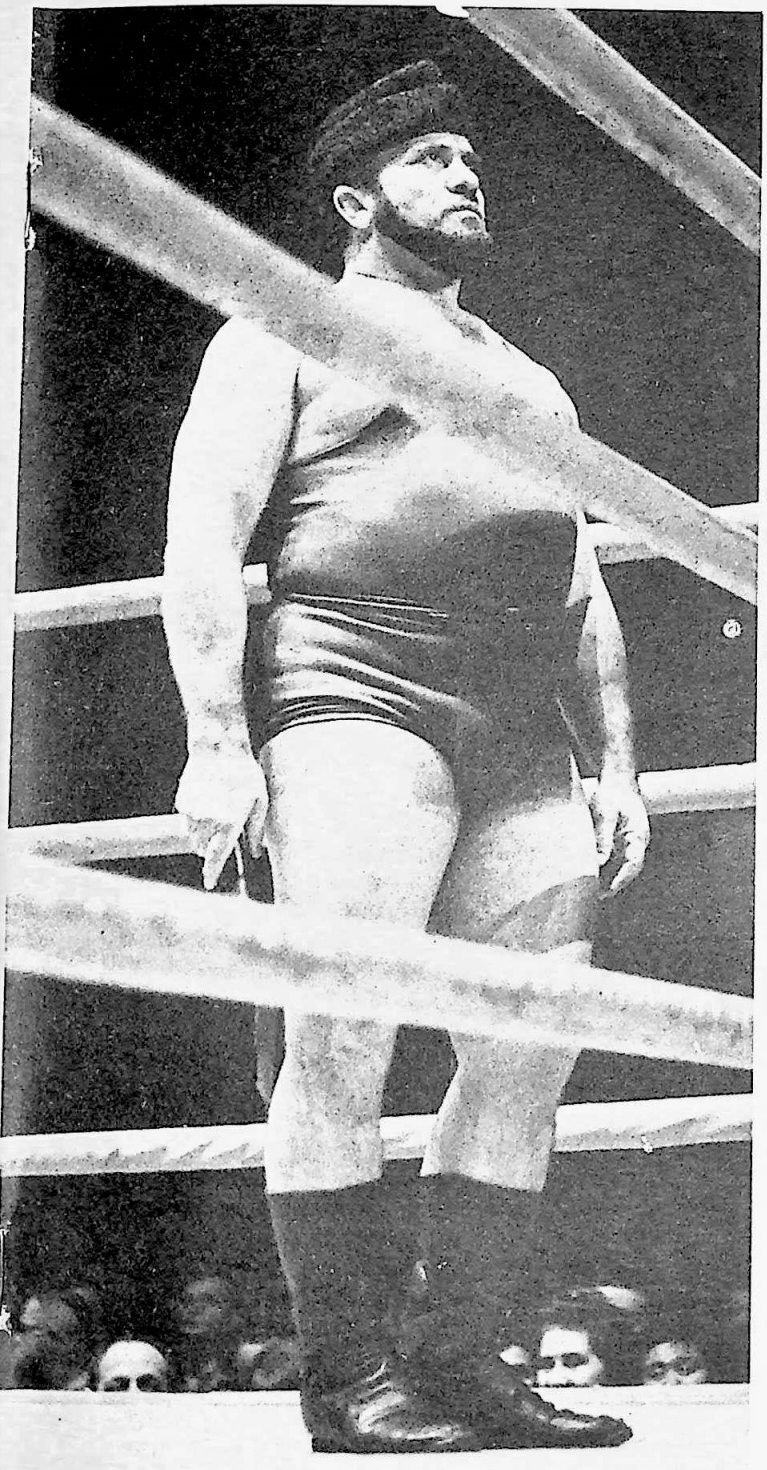
--NIKITA MULKOVITCH
PORTRAIT OF A MAD RUSSIAN

By WAL JEFFERSON



Mulkovitch makes no bones about his dislike for everything American—except the money. He is a crude man, both inside and outside of the ring.

Short and stocky Nikita Mulkovich kicked the arena door several times. No one opened it. Nikita began to cussa at it in violent Russian. I walked over to him and introduced myself. Before I could get a word in edgewise he yelled, "You Americans are all alike, lazy! Dat's one reason I come to America, to show you what real athletes look like, namely me, Nikita Mulkovich! I wrestle all over world. I just return from England where I beat everyone. I bury them all!"

Nikita began to kick harder on the door. In his hand he had a small hand shovel. I asked him what he intended to do with it. "I bury my opponent quick tonight," he stated. Mulkovich hates Americans, but loves the American dollars. "Yes, is true I like the money I get here, but that's all. As soon as I get enough I leave and go back to Russia, my home."

Finally the door opened and Mulkovich glared at the doorman. He walked slowly to his dressing room and began to dress for battle. I asked him what he hoped to get out of wrestling here in the U.S. besides money. "Well maybe I win world's title soon, then I go back to Russia. I will show all Russian people how Mulkovich is king. They will make it a national holiday when title is mine."

I couldn't help but laugh a little bit and Mulkovich began to get mad. "Listen you, I've beaten all so-called champs, but man I vant most of all is Bruno Sammartino! He has the title I vant and will get soon"!

I refreshed Nikita's memory with some of the men Bruno has put out of commission. Nikita just smiled, "I much stronger than Bruno, when I get him in my "bear crusher" hold he will run over vater back to Italy."

But now Mulkovich was due to face Thunderbolt Patterson, a real crowd-pleaser in his own right. Mulkovich entered the ring first swinging his shovel left and right. The crowds boos broke into cheers as Patterson leaped into the ring. As the ring announcer introduced Nikita he yelled, "For Russia!" That made the fans boo even harder. The bell sounded and Nikita headed straight for Patterson's legs but missed.

Patterson sent a hard right to Nikita's head. "FOUL!" yelled Mulkovich. "He hit me vith a lead pipe," Nikita complained to the ref. The action was wild all the way, finally ending in 15 minutes with both wrestlers battling to a draw. Nikita stayed in the ring and spat at the crowd.

Finally the police, all eight of them, were able to get the Russian back to the dressing room. Jumping up and down, Nikita took his shovel and began hitting wall. "American referees, phooey on them! I vin that match fair and square and dat ref calls it a draw." That's Nikita Mulkovich for you, wild as they come.

Oh well, anyone that loves American money can't be all bad!

MEET SHERRI WHITLOW

Young California beauty wants to be pro wrestler

Doc talks things over with a group of the girls, (l-r) Sheri, Pat, Doc and Carolyn. Pat, like Sherri, is a newcomer, while Carolyn is the "old pro" of the group with four years experience.

Sherri got good workouts in her bouts with Nanci (l) and Sally (r). She gave the two more experienced gals a rough time.

A tall, dark haired, dark eyed beauty with a sex-appeal 5 ft. 7 ins. figure that packs one hundred and fifteen pounds from the sun-kissed (smog covered) city of Los Angeles would be expected to be bitten by the acting bug, and look to the silver screen for a career, but not so in the case of lovely eighteen-year-old Sherri Whitlow.

Sherri aspires to be a gal wrestler. A real fine all-around athlete, she is an excellent swimmer, a fine softball player and an avid horsewoman. As a child Sherri lived on a farm and learned to ride almost as soon as she learned to walk.

Like most youngsters, Sherri became interested in wrestling via her TV set in the living room and was a great fan of the grapplers, collecting autographs and attending the matches whenever she could.

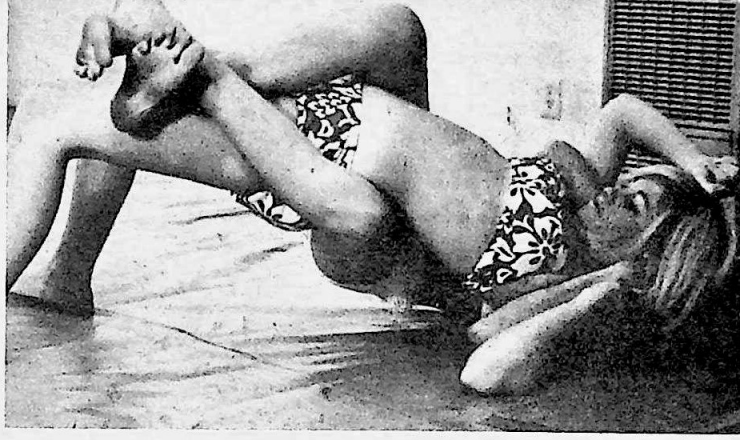
Up until two years ago the female of the species were barred from wrestling in California so it was only on TV that Sherri had ever watched them wrestle.

When the gals first appeared in California, Sherri was on hand to watch them and she decided right then and there that some day she would be up there in the ring with them.

After the bouts she was able to talk to the pros and told them of her desire to become one of them. They looked at her lean body and laughed.

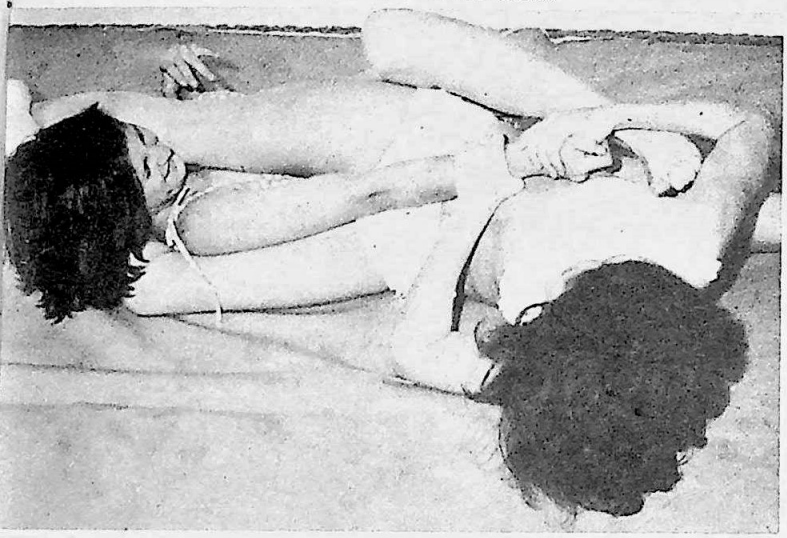
"Honey," she was told, "you have to have muscles to be a wrestler. You have the body of a model, not a wrestler."

This hold may not have a name ,but it has wiped the smile off Sally's face. Sherri makes up in desire what she lacks in skill.



Sherri has Nanci trapped in a full nelson and a body scissors, as the blonde beauty tries to bridge her way out of the holds.

Sherri likes to use combination holds. Here she has Pat in a head scissor and wrist-lock.



Sherri twists free from the hammer-lock that Pat had clamped on her.

Still she was not discouraged. She went to the gym where they taught wrestling and was told the same thing. Sherri, however, is a very stubborn young gal. She had made up her mind and nothing was going to change it.

However, she was at a dead end. It was then that she came across a copy of WRESTLING REVUE and read about Dr. Ron Dvorkin of Hollywood and the club of amateur girl wrestlers that he conducts. Sherri wrote to Dr. Dvorkin and was invited to come over and watch the gals work out.

The first time she attended a session Sherri went right in and tested some of the girls, who were bigger and had experience. She didn't pin anyone, but she earned their respect with her willingness and courage.

In a matter of only six short weeks she was more than holding her own with gals who had been wrestling for a year or more. While none of the other girls are interested in becoming pros—they wrestle for the fun and health benefits that they derive from the sport—they were taken aback by the fire and determination that Sherri puts into her matches.

If determination and attitude will make a champ, you can mark down the name of Sherri Whitlow right now for a spot on the throne. This young lady has made up her mind that she is going to be one of the best and when a woman makes up her mind, well fellows, you know the answer as well as I.

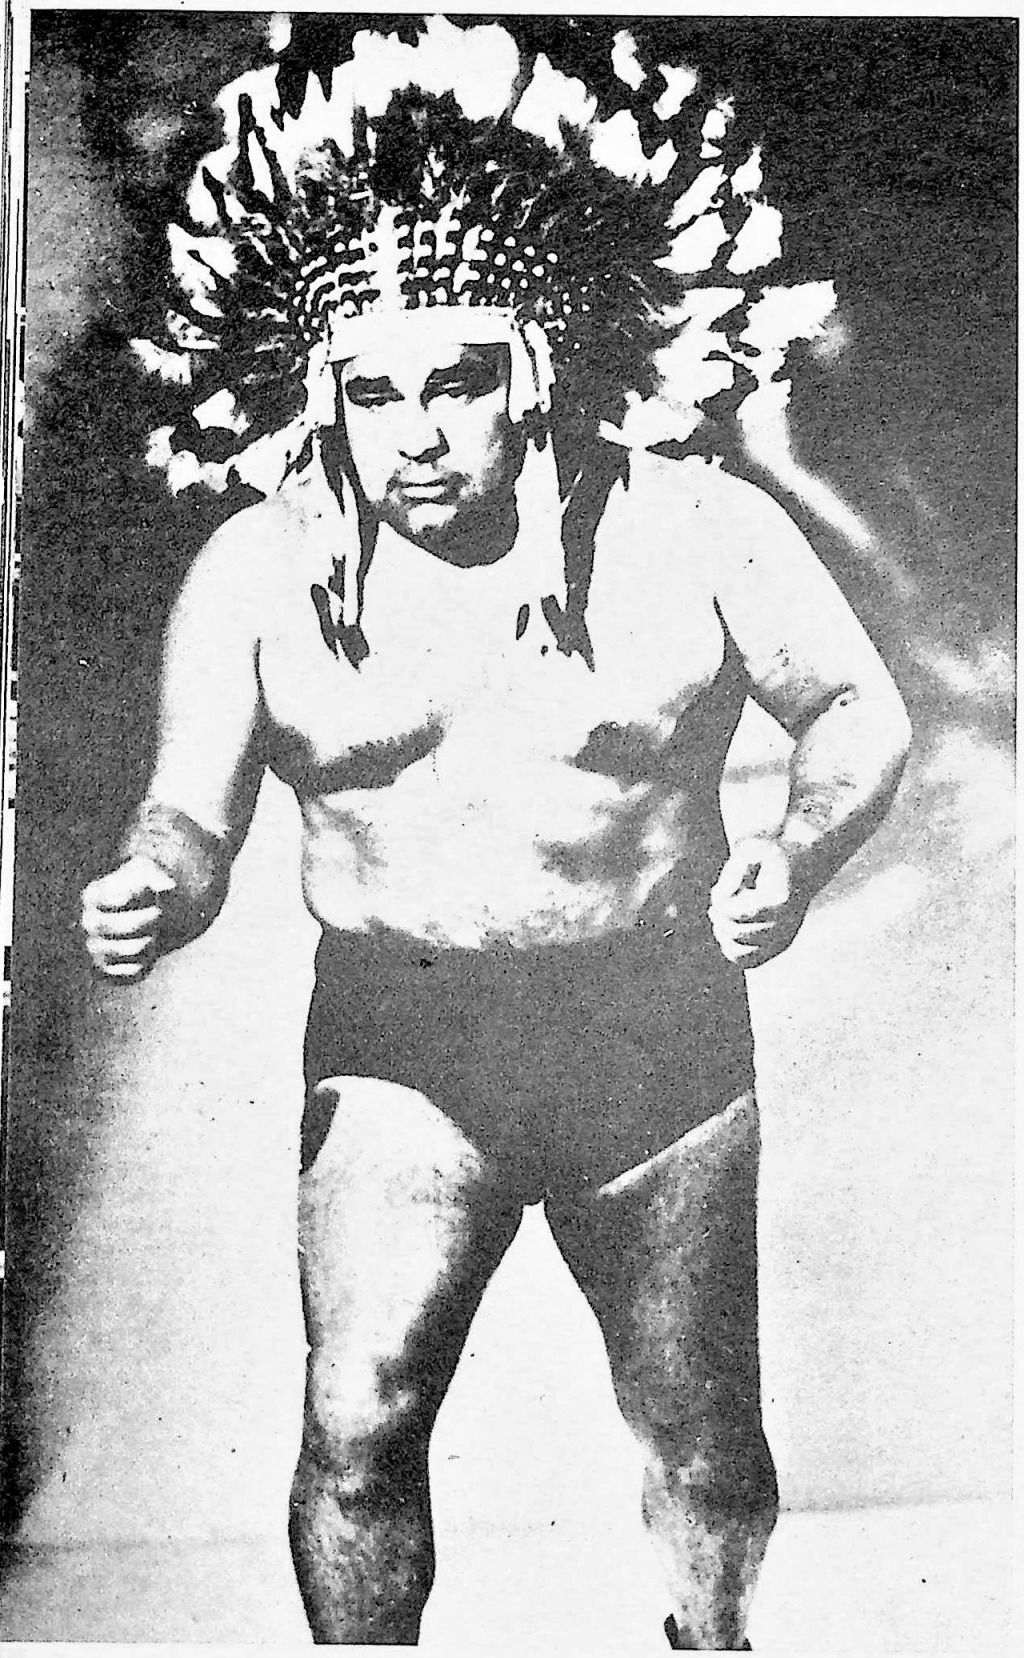
THE BIG CHIEF LITTLE WOLF STORY

Indian grappler was popular favorite all over the world



By DAVE CAMERON

One of the most popular wrestlers to ever visit Australia was Chief Little Wolf, who for over twenty years thrilled the fans with his wild style of grappling.

Born Ventura Tenario in a small town named Hoehme, which is situated about 12 miles from Trinidad in Colorado, the Chief's mother was a full-blooded Navajo Indian and his father was half Navajo—half Spanish.

Although Little Wolf was only a three-quarter caste Navajo Indian, he couldn't really be classed as a real Navajo Chief, because only full-blooded braves and warriors can achieve that rare honour. However, seeing Little Wolf was showing such great promise as a wrestler, his tribe dubbed him chief—an honorary title which he never lost.

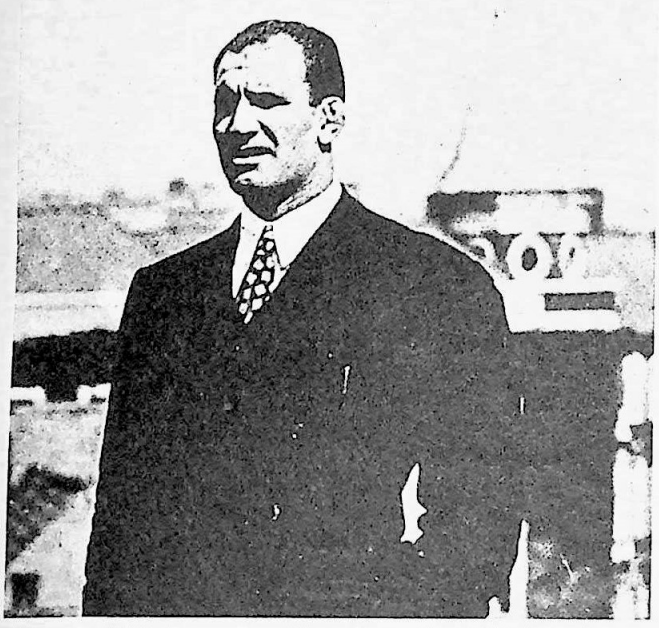
Standing only 5 feet 8¾ inches and weighing in at 252 lbs., the Chief has the fantastic chest measurement of 61 inches and a 45-inch waist. He's been called square set, chunky, roly-poly, sturdy and sometimes round.

As a youngster, Little Wolf was always good at sport, particularly track and field. His great idol was Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler, so it did not surprise when he became interested in boxing. As a light welter he had six fights under the name of Young Dempsey and came second in the Inter Rocky States title which attracted about 100 budding stars from around Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico.

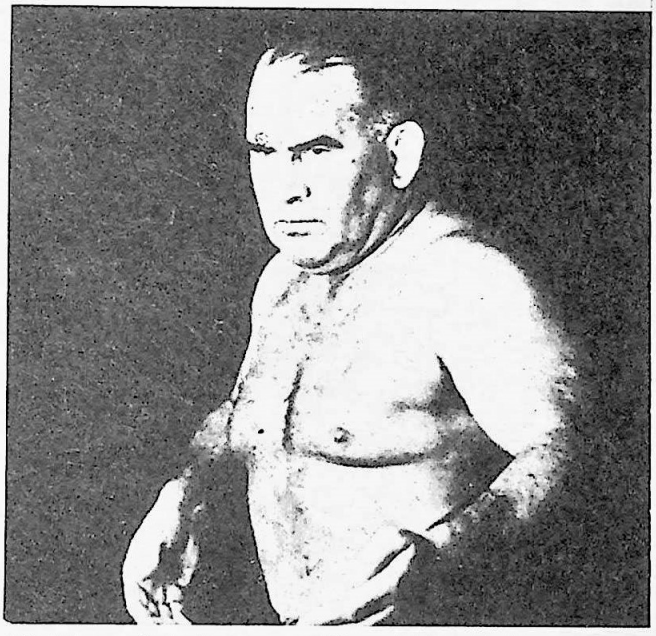
A little later he became interested in wrestling and there was a guy promoting in Trinidad. One of his stars was Ben Bolt—a Sioux Indian. "I decided I had to watch this guy in action" said the Chief, and "that's when the wrestling bug really hit me. And the wanderlust, which has stayed with me ever since."

Chief Little Wolf was one of the most popular of all Indian grapplers, a true chief of the mat.

This photo of Little Wolf was taken some years ago when he first arrived in New Zealand and was met by a large group of wrestling fans who turned out to welcome him.



Danno O'Mahoney, with whom the Chief had two stirring battles for the world championship.



Ed "Strangler" Lewis, another of the all-time greats with whom Little Wolf clashed.

After wrestling in the lighter weight divisions for several months, the Chief had made such rapid progress in the grappling game that he was matched with Gus Kellio, the Middleweight Champion of the World, who was known as the "Mighty Finn." After three and a half hours of strenuous wrestling Kellio was declared the winner by one fall to none. "No grappler before or since had the endurance of that guy. He came in with elbows forward throughout the bout and among other things cut my eyebrows to ribbons," declared the Chief.

The Chief was only 19 years of age when he met Kellio and rated this the outstanding match of his long career. He was one of the few men to have tackled the world wrestling championship in four divisions. welter, middle, light-heavy and heavy.

Another match that stands out in the Chief's memory was his world's heavyweight championship contest with Danno O'Mahoney before a record crowd at New York's Yankee Stadium. O'Mahoney had only recently lifted the crown from the "Golden Greek," Jimmy Londos. and was in great shape.

The bout started at 9:45 and when midnight came the score was one fall each. The curfew was midnight, otherwise the match would have continued till a winner was decided.

The rematch was at Chicago and this time O'Mahoney won by two falls to one.

Other big names the Chief met in his long career was Jim McMillan, Ray Steele, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, and flying tackle expert Gus Sonnenberg.

INSIDE EUROPEAN WRESTLING

By GUSS VAN DER GUCHT

Spotlight on France

In recent years there has been a new French Revolution—in wrestling. I have already written of the giant Ferre, France's great hope in the heavyweight class. Things have been changing, too, in the lightweight section For many years, wrestlers like Gilbert Ceska and Jean Rabut have been the top men in France and on the continent, and they will remain there for quite a while. Nevertheless, newcomers have moved in and made their presence felt with successes all over the continent.

Such new names as "Le Petit Prince," Falopin, "Le Petit Duc," Bobby Genele, Joe Corso, Kamikaze and others are appearing on every great show. The average age of these fellows is about 21. Let's have a closer look at them.

Le Petit Prince is the beloved star of all Paris. He regularly appears on television, and his sensational bouts with Bobby Genele have been seen all over the continent. The Prince is a light-lightweight. He weighs only 110 pounds in wet socks, and yet I once saw him outwrestle an opponent twice as heavy as himself. Such successes, and there have been many of them, are mostly due to his enormous speed. And we must not overlook the fact that this chap has been involved in gymnastics since he was an eight-year-old boy.

At the age of thirteen he went to one of the famous French catch galas and he became so interested that he wanted nothing more in the whole world than to become a wrestler. However, his parents strongly objected, so all he could do was to continue with his gymnastics, and he became quite famous. Indeed, at the age of fifteen he won the junior championship of the French-Comte Department. Many people thought of him as a coming Olympic champion.

How wrong they were. The kid's love for wrestling was stronger than anyone suspected. Secretly, he was taking instructions in the basic stuff of wrestling, and very soon the word got around town that the young gymnast was about to become a top matman. At the age of eighteen, people say, anything can happen. The Prince's father happened to see his son training in a small local gym, and got so enthusiastic about the way the kid could beat up the other guys that he gave his immediate consent for him to embark on a pro wrestling career.

So far so good, but how was a young guy going to get his start in the pro ring? How was he going to get a chance to compete when there were so many greats? Again, he was lucky. On a certain Saturday evening, as an amateur, he had to open up a pro show. People got so excited about his completely new wrestling style and his wrestling skills that he got an ovation. Letters began pouring in to the promoter, asking to see more of the little guy. In the letters, they called him "Le Prince des Voltigeurs" (Prince of the Tumblers), and very soon this became "Le Petit Prince" (The Little Prince) as he is known today.

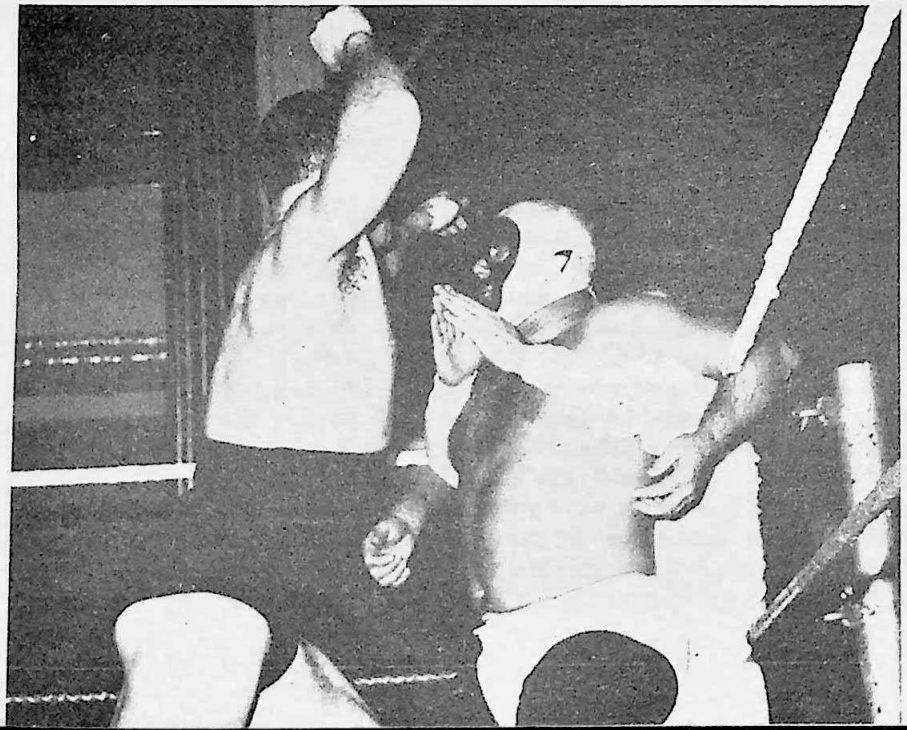
As we all know, nothing is more helpful to a wrestling promoter than a good, lively feud. In Europe, we have had the English against the French and the Germans, etc. However, Le Petit Prince didn't fit in any of these molds, and in due time Boby Genele made his appearance. Now, Bobby was one of the so-called "Blousons noires", a streetcat, and he was going to teach this noble prince how to fight the hard way . . . he'd better order his funeral in advance. A new and promising feud was born.

Bobby, with his extremely long hair, entered the Paris rings under a storm of boos. A rough, tough wrestler, he used every trick to win. He always gave both his opponent and the referee a hard time.

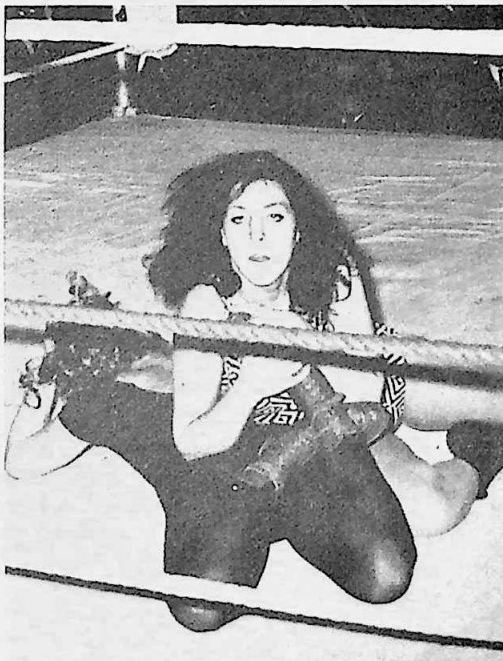
It was evident that the furious public would never side with Mr. Genele, until the masked Kamikaze entered the picture. Then their loyalties switched. First of all, the masked one was no Frenchman. Second, he used even rougher tactics than Bobby. So the people of Paris hailed the long haired one instead of hissing him, for the first time since the start of his career.

To complete the whole affair, a tag team match was held between the two Kamikazes vs. Le Petit Prince and Bobby Genele. It turned out to be Paris' biggest event. Now the fans and promoters know that with these young people, very talented, a fresh start has been given to lightweight competition in France. The famed traditional lightweight matmen like Ceska, Rabut, Corne, and Chemoul can't be too sure of their status any more. The French just love it.

Lo the poor referee, trapped in a corner behind Dr. Death as Allan Lafoudre pounds away at the masked roughneck.



Lola Garcia, one of Europe's most popu female grapplers, has Jacky Jones all t up during a hectic battle.



NAMES, NOTES AND NEWS FROM

THE BRITISH WRESTLING SCENE

By BRIAN G. DIXON

With wrestling activities in England well under way at the holiday resorts around the British Isles, it is a pleasure to have so much to report.

Biggest disappointment to many hundreds of fans is that young deaf and dunb star Mike Eagers lost the biggest chance of his short career by going down to Alan Colbeck in a recent bid to take Colbeck's European welterweight title at Nottingham. However, Mike's fans had one consolation in the news that for the second year running he was the winner of the countrywide popularity poll organized by the large A-Z Supporters Club.

While Colbeck retained his European welterweight belt, the British title at the same weight, currently held by Jim Breaks of Bradford, is to be put at stake in the near future. Alan Seargent held the title for some months before losing it to Breaks at Leeds, and now Sergeant is getting his chance of taking the title back from Breaks, who also holds the European lightweight belt.

Another young wrestler who could well take this title is Mike Bennett, who recently made a spectacular comeback after a nine-month retirement by winning a televised tournament for welterweights, which included Breaks. The rivalry between Bennett and Breaks is very fierce, and Bennett's very first bout on his return to the ring was a fifteen-round drawn bout with the champion.

Albert Wall, the Doncaster Destroyer, heads another party of top wrestlers flying to Japan where our boys are making great names for themselves. Along with Wall, such names as Mighty John Cox, and Roy Bull Davies, will shortly be seen in the rings of Japan, where there is talk of arranging special tournaments for them.

Possible tournaments for Britisn wrestlers in New Zealand are being discussed, for this winter season. John da Silva, based in his home town of Auckland, would welcome British opposition. John, of course, holds the heavyweight championship title in New Zealand.

A battered COUNT BARTELLI with Brian Dixon after the match with KENDO.

Without any doubt Britain's most rugged masked wrestler is now Kendo Nagasaki, the rough mystery man who beat the legendary Count Bartelli some two years ago. The grudge between these two men has again come to a head and promoters have arranged what is being called the heavyweight contest of the century, to be fought under American rules. This means that one wrestler must win, there can be no drawn verdict. Whether Nagasaki can again prove superior to the very experienced Bartelli remains to be seen, but for my money this will be a bout to be remembered by all fans lucky enough to be present. I personally rate Nagasaki as Britain's top heavyweight, and can see him in the future conquering the rings right round the world. He is only a young man, and has done extremely well in his short wrestling career.

Le Grand Vladimir, the giant Russian exile, is once again back in our rings. The huge heavyweight last visited these shores some five years ago, and was so severely injured in a bout that it was thought he would never wrestle again. However, after many months spent in hospitals, he fought back, and his first bout in this country will be with the man who injured him so badly, Tibor Szakacs, at the Royal Albert Hall.

One of the most talked about tag teams in the Country at the moment is Hell's Angels, the controversial combination of Bobby Barnes and Adrian Street. Never before have a tag team caused so much commotion Before and during a fight, and if they continue winning all their bouts as at present, they could well become Britain's top tag team.

Bert Royal is once again wearing a gold Lord Mountevans beld around his waist after beating Peter Preston in an eliminator for the Heavymiddleweight title. In past years Royal has been the holder of the British, European and World middleweight belts and he now steps up a weight to take the title vacated by Eric Taylor who retired from the ring some months ago.

Always in the news these days is welterweight Steve Clements, captain of the popular Yorkshire Terriers tag team. With partner Mick McMichael they make a teenage idol pairing and are regularly seen around the country and on the television screen both in tag and solo bouts. Steve will shortly be leaving for a tour of Spain where he made a big impact last year.

A name that has suddenly shot into the headlines is that of Roger Green, a welterweight hailing from Portsmouth, but now resident in Leeds. Green has been on the fringe of the wrestling scene for some time, gradually improving style & technique, and has suddenly emerged as the top contender in the welterweight class, already beating champion Breaks in a televised bout.

With such keen rivalry in the welterweight class, I am at present preparing a special article spotlighting some of the top welterweights, so watch for this article and photos in a future issue of WRESTLING REVUE.

One of wrestling's most exciting tournaments ever is to take place shortly in the Royal Albert Hall. Every top wrestling personality is to take part in this wrestling spectacular which will be held in the presence of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh. This will be the night of the year for the 6,000 fans lucky enough to obtain tickets. I will be at the ringside with camera and notebook, and will have the full story and photographs of this great attraction for readers of REVUE.

The International Pen Pal Service I operate has been a tremendous success. Remember, if you want a pen pal, write to me direct with some information on yourself and a photograph if possible and which country you want to write to, and your name will be featured and advertised in Britain and other countries. GAL ACTION IN THE SOUTHLAND

By GENE GORDON

The female members of the wrestling species are very popular whenever they appear, but nowhere are they greeted with so much enthusiasm as in dear "Old Dixie". The fans down south of that Mason-Dixon Line really go wild over the antics of the gals. These photos taken by our No. One Camera clicker, Gene Gordon, show why the gals create such excitement and why they are box office magic in the wrestling centers of the Southland.

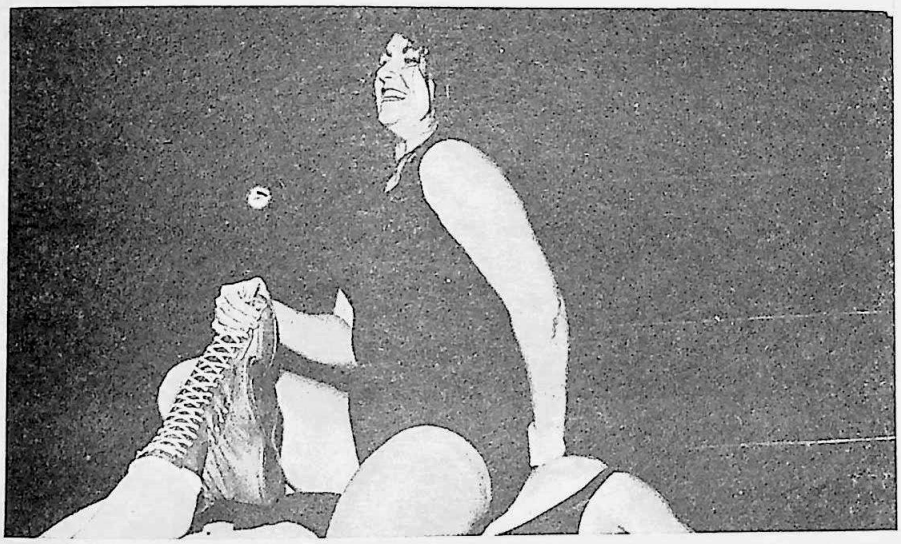
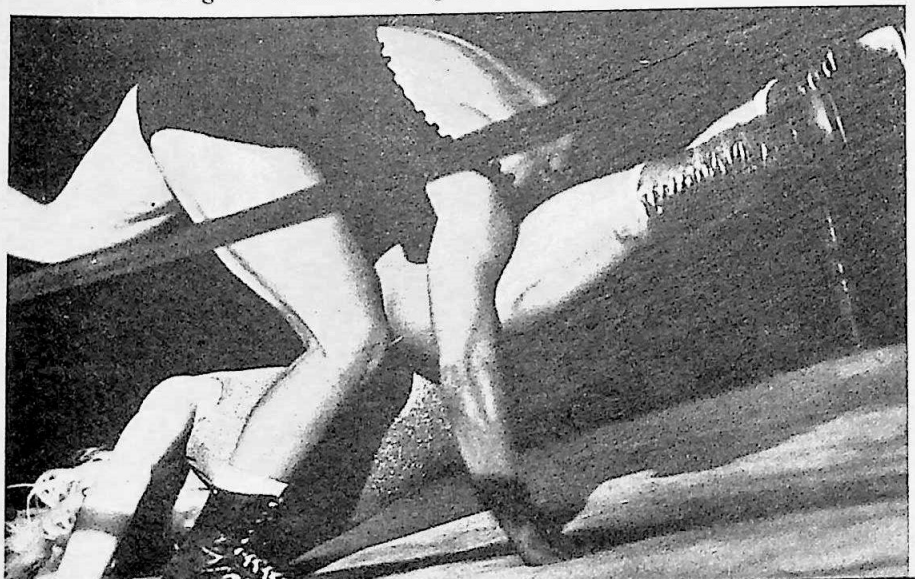
Referee Angelo Martinelli takes a closer look at the goings on between Barbara and Bette.

Toni gets thrown for a loss by Donna.

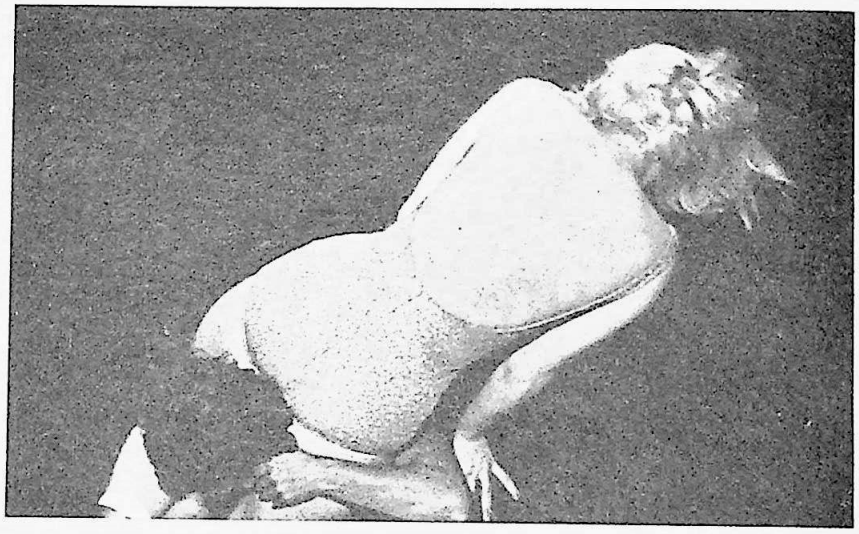


(Above) Toni puts the pressure on a toe-hold that has Donna howlig in pain. (Below) Those lovely legs of Barbara get a workout using Bette's head for practice.



Toni makes good use of the rope making a necktie for Donna.

Miss Christanella doesn't seem to be getting the kick out of this that Toni intended.



Barbara gets a lift from Bette who is about to dump her on her pretty head.

The toe-twisting efforts of Miss Rose pay off, as Donna submitted, losing the fall.

MEET NICK KOZAK

Nice guys don't always finish last

By BETTY McINTYRE

When people say things come big from Texas, I can assure you one of the biggest names to hit the Texas wrestling circuit is that of Nick Kozak. Most people when first exposed to Nick in the ring, find him to be one of the more outstanding wrestlers around. He not only has the ability to keep the crowds on pins and needles, but has learned in his wrestling years every trick it takes to be one of the favorites. In the ring it is hard to find any man who is faster or better equipped to handle a rough situation.

Having watched Nick wrestle many times, I find that he is able to take or dish out any treatment that is given. Usually a nice, easy-going guy in the ring, he is able to turn what starts out to be a good clean fight into a mad war. "I don't like to start trouble," says Nick, "but believe me, I don't intend to wait until a guy beats me to death before I start doubling up my fists." This he proves every time he fights. Not only has Nick fought some of the biggest names in the wrestling circuit, but he has earned the respect of any and every fan that watches him.

When I was interviewing Nick, I found him to be one of the nicest guys to talk with, for he made you feel as if you had known him for years. He is quite an outdoors-man, and takes part in many sports. Of course, his first sport is wrestling but second comes surfing. Having learned to surf in Hawaii and on waves as big as fifteen feet, he can well handle a surf board. He started surfing in 1960 while wrestling in Hawaii, and has ridden the waves with such surfing greats as Fred Hemmings and George Dowing and also wrestler-surfer Lord (Tally-Ho) Blears. Most Sundays or days when he is not working Nick is on the beach, riding every wave he can catch.

Nick also enjoys horseback riding and has belonged to quick draw clubs. In fact, in talking to Nick I find it hard to see how he has any time at all to wrestle, for if he isn't surfing, it's horseback riding or doing any thing he can out doors.

In Texas at the present time Nick and his brother, Jerry Kozak, have formed one of the hottest tag team groups around. Seeing these two guys fight is really something special, for they are fast and able to work together like no other team I have ever seen. They not only put on a good fight but also a great show. Everyone who watches them finds it unbelieveable the way they work together in winning every match they can, for they both have great style and agility in the ring.

What ever Nick plans for the future I'm sure he will get the best out of what he does, for he has the ability to outwrestle, out-think, and outsmart any man he fights.

Nick is a great lover of the outdoors and one of the best surfers there is. Whenever he has the free time you can find him with his board down by the sea.

Good looks and a pleasing personality—two big reasons why Nick is rated aces with the fans.

FAN CLUB CHATTER

Received the following letter from Gene Ryall, head of the UNLIMITED RESULT SERVICE, 408 Ingram Blvd., West Memphis, Ark. 72301. "Thanks very much for the listing, however, now I see that I did not give you the right information on my service. Due to the high postage coasts I have been forced to change my prices to five cents per set of results. Individual wrestlers' results are still a penny apiece. My results range from the 50's to 1964. I have very few from 1965 to 68."

ACTION IN NEW YORK

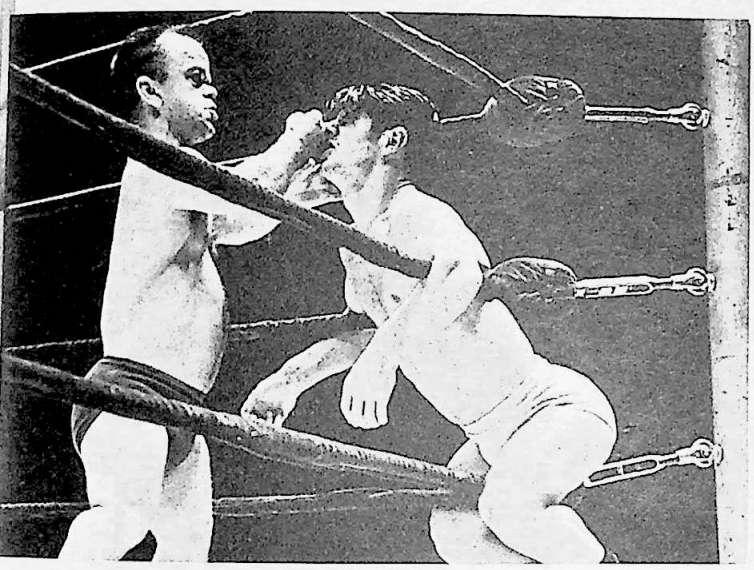
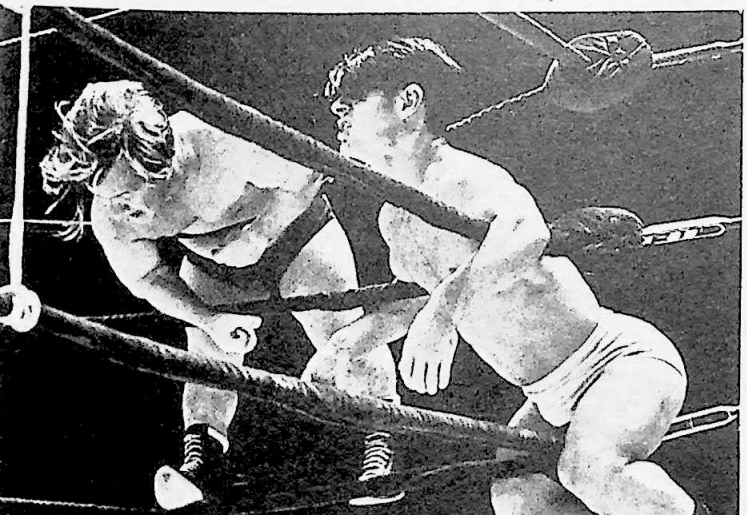
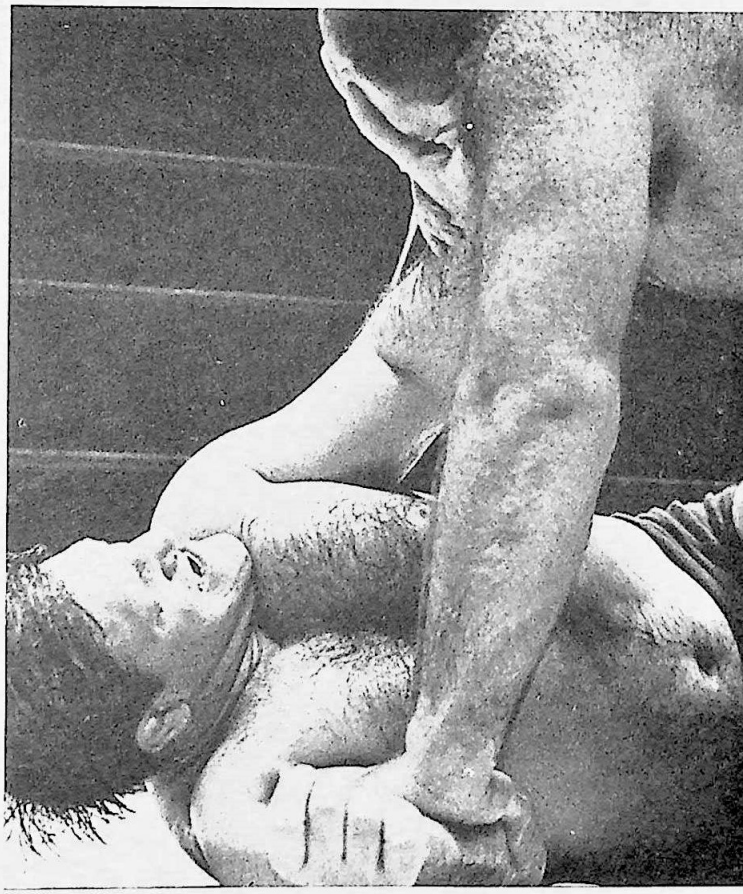
George Steele has a reverse wrist lock on Bruno Sammartino.

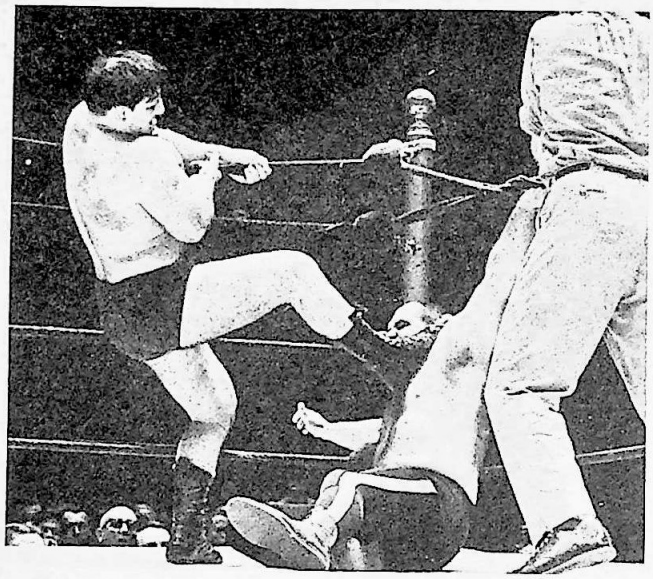


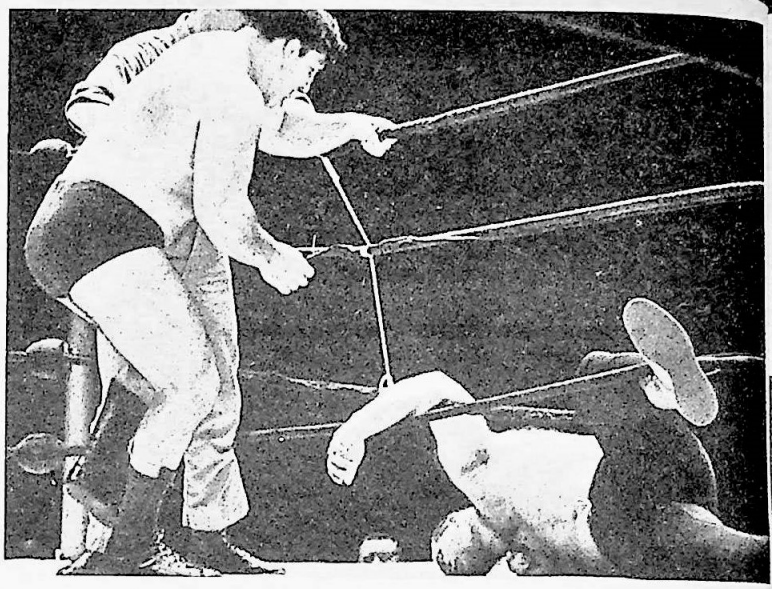
As usual the match involving the midgets gave the fans plenty of action. Frenchy LaMonte trapped in a corner as Irish Jackie and Cowboy Bradley take turns working him over.



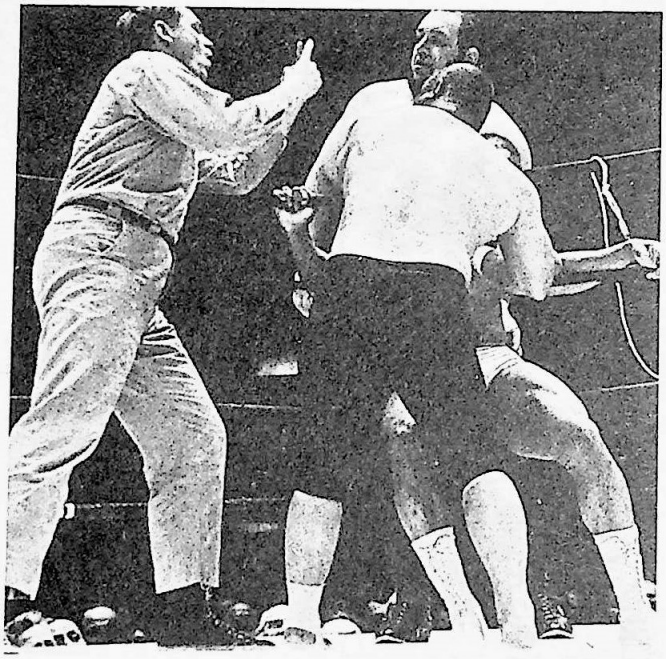


The struggle between Sammartino and Steele was a brutal one that saw both men absorb a lot of punishment during the 50-minute draw.

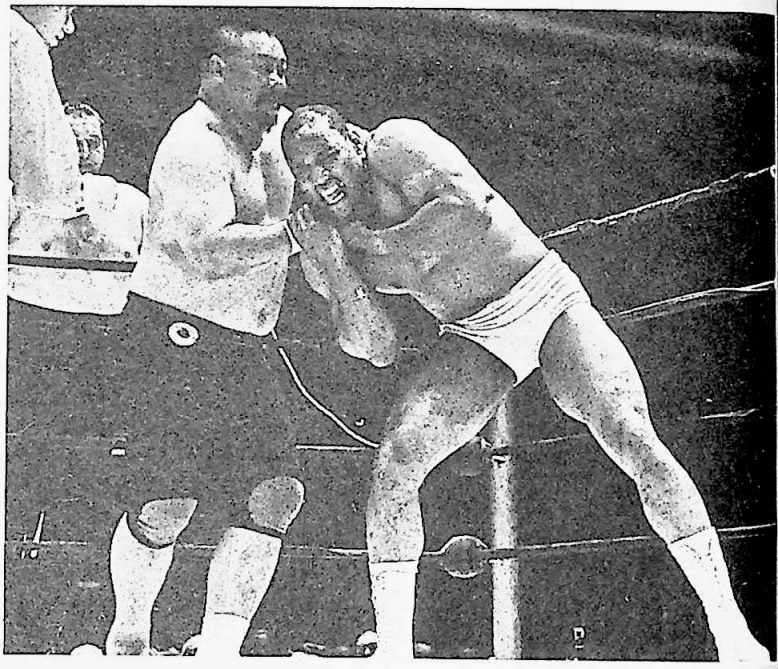




The ropes got a good play from both men as they battle it out with the tide turning first in Bruno's favor and then in George's and then back and forth and back and forth.

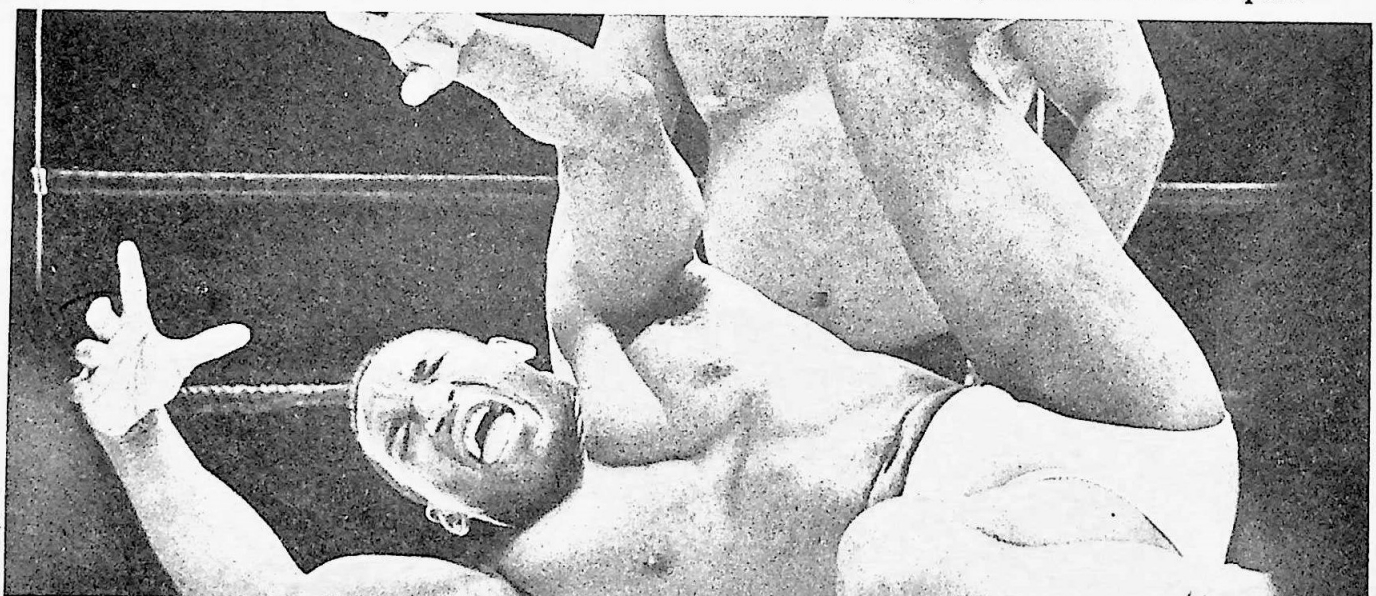


The tag-team brawl pitting the teams of Prof. Tanaka and Gorilla Monsoon vs Earl Maynard & Bobo Brazil was a real wing-dinger.

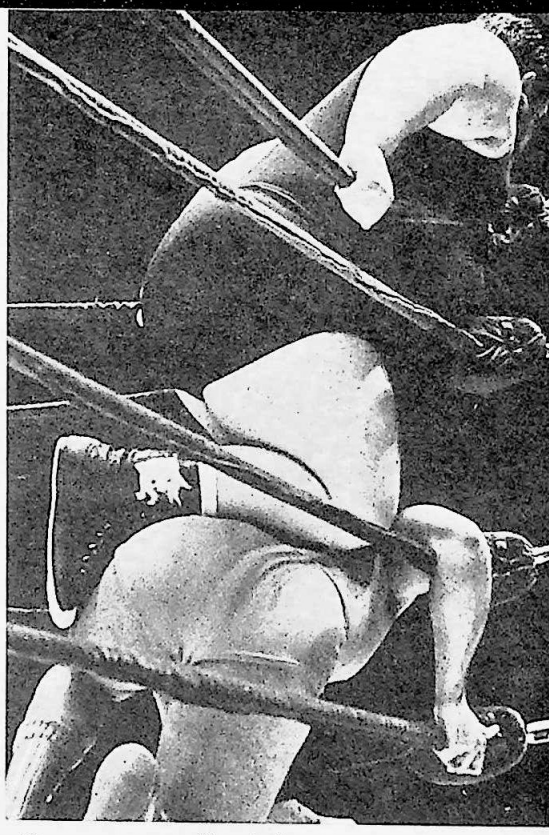


Tactics fair and foul were employed by all four men before the team of Monsoon & Tanaka came out on top.

Prof. Tanaka made good use of his vicious nerve hold to subdue Maynard, who howled with pain.



Cry Baby Cannon grimaces in pain as Victor Rivera puts the pressure on his wrist-lock.



Cannon uses all of his 300-plus pounds as he tries to drive Vic into the mat.

The classy Rivera shows perfect form as he bridges his way out of an attempted pin by Cannon. A few seconds later Victor pinned his blubbery rival.

ANTONIO

applied in the above order, have clinched most recent matches for Tony and have made him just about invincible.

Observant fans noticed that Pugliese is some twenty pounds lighter than when he stepped onto the jet for Tokyo. Tony believes the lost poundage has given him added speed. The Japan trip was no vacation as he trained even harder and watched his diet more closely than before. Nowadays, few opponents can catch him, let alone defeat him.

When asked his secret for success, Antonio replied, "Train, train, train. Working with Bruno also helped a lot to develop strength, endurance, and ability. I already had the agility. Two years ago, I bench pressed 260 pounds. Then Bruno put me on his course and now I'm up to 450."

Like his famous cousin, Tony is fond of opera. Unknown to many, he took vocal lessons for three years and has an exceptionally fine voice. Fortunately for wrestling fans, he has decided to sing only as a hobby. Dancing is another of his favorite pastimes.

But Antonio's first love remains in the ring where he and his cousin provide the wrestling patrons with the greatest one-two punch west of Italy. Both in single and tag team bouts, they have repulsed the likes of Gorilla Monsoon, Hans Mortier, Professor Tanaka, Killer Kowalski, Bulldog Brower, and Tank Morgan.

They say it runs in the family.

Pugliese gices full credit to Sammartino for his improvement as a wrestler.

wrestlers yourself. You have been in this business for a good number of years and occasionally you don your tights to get into the ring. But you seem to spend your time running around the ring rather than getting down to wrestling. Why is that?

A: In this business, you have to use your head. The way I figure it, the more I run, the more my opponent has to run. This gets him tired and I have an easy time winning then. I am afraid of no one. Where they use their muscles to think, I use my brain. This makes a difference.

Q: Gentleman Saul, you and the Von Brauners have been the cause of a large number of riots. Wrestling commissions all over the country have threatened to suspend you because of these riots. Why do you suppose these riots happen wherever you appear?

A: Well, for one thing, the people that start these riots are a bunch of trouble makers. They are the kind that go home and beat their kids and kick their dogs just to be mean. They have no class as far as recognizing talent. My boys are the finest wrestlers in the world today. These troublemakers favor the guys we wrestle and when their heroes get stomped, they try to gang up on us. But there are many people all over the country who have felt the wrath of the Germans. Why, I remember one time a woman in Georgia tried to hit me with her spiked-heel shoe. She will not forget me, ever.

Q: Do you mean to tell me that you hit a woman?

A: Certainly. She tried to hit me first.

Q: I never heard of another case like that.

A: Well, let me tell you something, Miss Reporter. I say that as long as someone tries to hit me, they better prepare themselves. I don't care if they are men, women, children or cripples. I'll break them in half if they try any funny stuff. Why, I had a guy in a wheelchair throw a knife at me once.

Q: What did you do?

A: I ran over there and knocked him over. He had no right to throw a knife at me.

Q: But isn't that unfair? I mean, after all, a man in a wheelchair has no chance against a guy like yourself.

A: Well, I'll tell you something. I do not like people who are smart alecks. That guy in the wheelchair was a smart aleck. And he got whatever he deserved. And I especially don't like smart-aleck reporters. Especially women reporters. You've got three seconds to get out of here. If you don't, you're going to be very sorry.

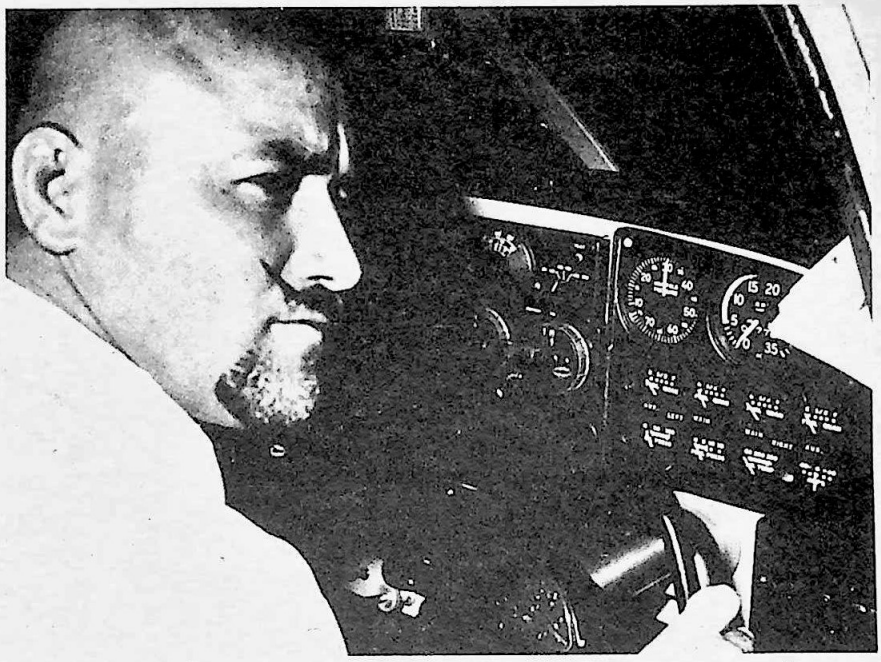
Thinking about our safety, we left. Quite hastily, we might add. If nothing else, the Von Brauners and their manager, Gentleman Saul Weingeroff have got themselves quite a reputation.

That night, we went to see the Germans in action. Their opponents for the night were crowd-pleasers and the Germans went about their destructive business quite methodically. They kicked, gouged and punched their way to victory. One of their opponents "accidentally walked into" Saul's cane. Their methods are the most brutal of any team in wrestling today. We think that wrestler mentioned at the beginning of this article had the right idea about going back to being a florist. He's a great deal safer. Dandelions don't hurt as much as these German Lions.



Karl is an expert pilot who flies the Von Brauners' private plane. Karl denies that he flew with the German Air Force during World War Two, saying he was too young, but it could be true.

dearly love to have a title match with Robinson. After a recent televised bout, when he went down to Robinson by the odd fall, it is the opinion of many that Gwyn is the one man who could take Robinson's crown.

I have every respect for Robinson, but to my mind Gwyn Davies is the ideal champion in every respect. He has the height—6 feet, 5 inches, and weighs 17 stone 13 lbs., but can still move around the ring at electrifying speed. He also has the rugged approach which is essential to a champion, taking as much punishment as it necessary to win. Many of his victories have been with his famous submission hold which he calls the Davies Suspension, and a deadly hold he has perfected over the years.

As well as travelling some 1,500 miles every week to wrestling halls all over the country, Gwyn has a large business of Haulage Contractors in Yorkshire. Even if he hasn't arrived home from a wrestling engagement until the early hours of the morning, Gwyn still rises at 5.30 next days, and puts in a full days work at the business, often travelling again in the evening to another strenuous bout. Small wonder that he is always in tip-top condition!

Gwyn has lost only one of his last 25 matches, the televised contest with Robinson. The rest have been convincing victories over men like Ian Campbell, Dennis Mitchell, Ski High Lee, Jim Hussey and Wild Angus. Fans all over the country have been talking about the grudge wich has developed between Davis and Kendo Nagasaki, the masked karate expert. Nagasaki is feared by nearly all the heavyweights in this country. His knowledge of karate and kendo is terrific. The majority of his opponents, however, do not have the advantage of size as Gwyn does and to my mind he is one of Nagasaki's biggest headaches, matching him in every respect. Their last bout ended with both being disqualified as being completely out of control. A return bout was demanded by both, and the contracts are at present being signed. Davies has a huge fan following, and when the date is announced the hall will be packed to capacity with fans hoping to see Nagasaki unmasked.

Gwyn hopes to make a trip to the United States very soon to meet their top heavyweights, and to try to bring the world title home with him. Along with Robinson, he is possibly the most likely to be able to do this.

Gwyn is very popular with the newcomers to the game who he spends hours teaching the ins and outs of the sport.

Little Wolf

Another tough match was at Denver when he faced up to Two-Ton Tony Galento. He was the cigar-smoking, beer-swilling Italian who once fought Joe Louis for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world. Tony was beaten two falls to nil, thanks to the Indian deathlock, the hold which the Chief made famous throughout the wrestling world. Tony was annoyed after the bout and declared that in a boxing match he would flatten Little Wolf in four rounds. The challenge was accepted and at the end of the fourth round both men were still on their feet and slugging away at each other.

One of his more recent opponents was the equally colourful Texan, Ski Hi Lee, "a mighty big fella" according to Big Chief Little Wolf. Little Wolf beat Lee three times and lost to him once.

Perhaps his biggest roughhouse ever was in Melbourne back in 1953 after the Dick Raines—Don Beitleman bout. The Chief was sitting at ringside as a spectator and was'nt too happy about it either, as he had been passed unfit by the doctor. His opponent was to have been "Dirty" Dick Raines.

In the sixth round after referee Bonnie Muir had disqualified both men, the Chief jumped in the ring and had a go at Raines. He snatched the ring microphone from an astonished broadcaster and explained to the fans that he was supposed to wrestle Raines, and then promptly challenged Raines to meet him the following week.

This match ended in a draw after Raines obtained a fall with his back-breaker and the Chief equalised in the final round with the Deathlock.

The Chief learned the Indian Deathlock from the way Geronimo (the big tough Chief who hated the palefaces) used to torture his arch-enemies. Geronimo would take his captives, have them stripped, then set a stake pole on top of an ant-hill and the legs of the prisoner would be entwined around the stake. The more he struggled, the greater would be the pain. The body was then covered with honey and the ants did the rest.

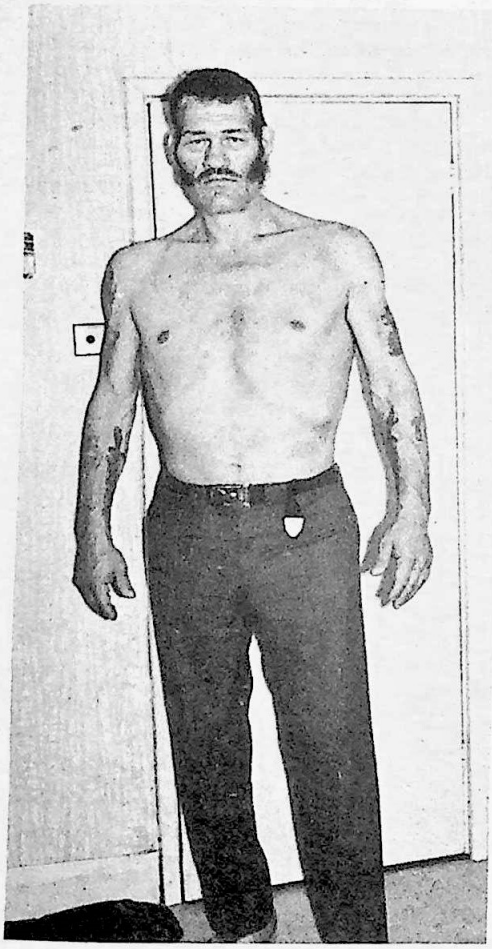
The Indian deathlock is identical to this method of torture, except the leg takes the place of the upright stake.

With this hold the Chief has broken the legs of six wrestlers, among them Man Mountain Dean, Dean Detton, Joe Savoldi and Sammy Stein.

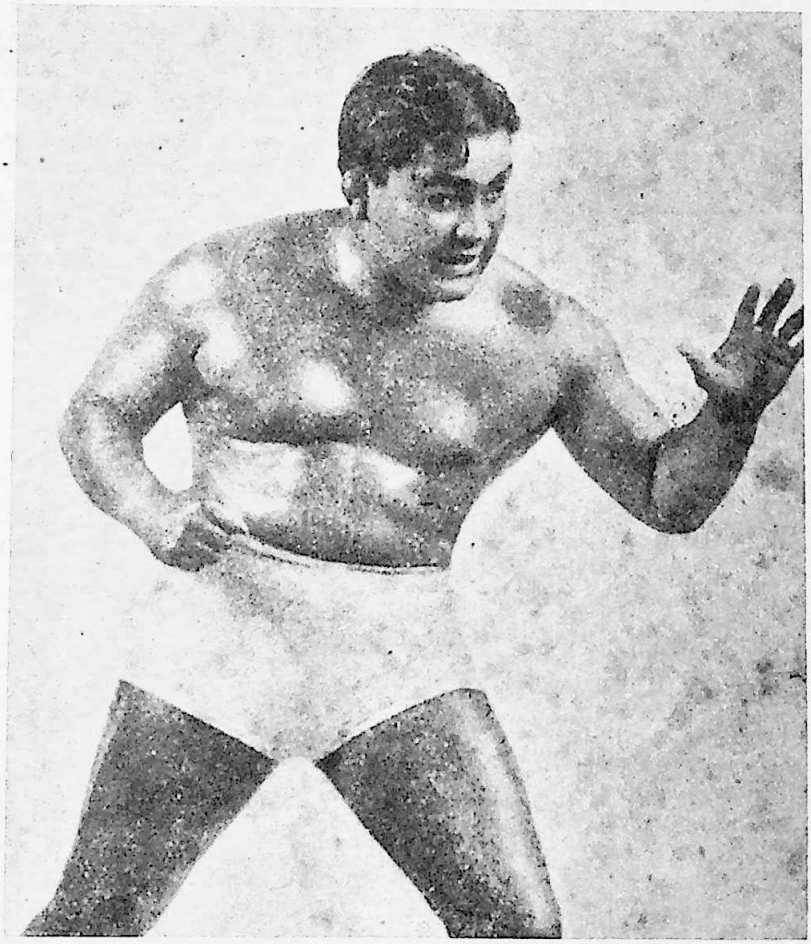
During World War Two the Chief found himself in the uniform of Uncle Sam's Army and his particular job was instructor in a Commando unit. He was invalided home from Sicily but finished up a Provost Marshall at the infamous stockade at Los Angeles, Calif.

The Chief took such a great liking to Australia that he settled in Melbourne and for many years was the local favorite against the visiting foreign wrestlers who invaded Australia each season.

When the Chief finally retired a few years ago, he toured Australia and New Zealand demonstrating his famous deathlock and gave talks on self-defence and Indian folk lore.



The giant Texan, Sky Hi Lee, who was one of the last men with whom Little Wolf wrestled.



Little Wolf has settled down in Australia where he was adopted by the people as a local hero and where he is still idolized.

seen men suffer permanent injury from it in Europe, where it has been barred. The same thing should be done in the states. It is pretty bad when these guys have to use crippling holds and illegal tactics to make up for their shortcomings as wrestlers."

I couldn't agree more with Pat. As one who always frowned on the use of dirty tactics when I was wrestling, I have passed on to those proteges of mine the same thoughts. No foul tactics; only when someone uses them against you. Then you reply in kind.

Every place you look there are some wise guys going around trying to steal my stuff by acting as managers. Now it is Maurice LaBelle for that dumb brother of his, Pierre, and a fat clown calling himself Abdullah Faruk, who is managing The Shiek. Of course both Pierre and The Shiek wanted me to handle them. When I refused, they went out and found these "CHEAP" imitations to do it. Well, they say that imitation is the most sincere form of flattery.

Gene Kiniski is off on a long European tour this summer where he will meet all of the top men and champions of the different countries, Gene should give the fans a good show, for he is an exciting wrestler.

Earl "Mr. Universe" Maynard has become one of the hottest attractions in wrestling since coming to the Eastern states under the promotion of Vince McMahon. He and Bruno Sammartino form a top one-two combination at the box office.

WWWF President Willie Gilzenberg returned to his first love, boxing, to promote a show to raise money for underprivileged children in Newark, N.J. recently and drew over $28,000 for the cause. In bygone days Willie was one of boxing's top promoters, but he gave it up to run the WWWF. One reason that the federation is so well run its Willie's tireless efforts.

Promoter Abe Ford continues to draw jam-packed houses to the Boston Gardens where Eduard Carpentier is the top draw. Great matches and top talent are the secret of success for Abe and every other top promoter across the country.

Ernie Ladd, the top defensive tackle of the Kansas City Chiefs, is considering hanging up his football spikes. Ladd is in great demand around the county with all of the wrestling promoters bidding for his services and he might stick to the mat this fall instead of returning to football. It all depends on how much loot the Chiefs come up with at contract time.

Another pro footballer who has turned to wrestling and has been doing great is Jim Nance, the Boston Patroit's all-league running back who was on NCAA wrestling champion at Syracuse. Jim is running over the opposition just like he did linebackers on the football field. So far Jim has been appearing in Ohio and upstate New York but he will soon be branching out.

THE NATIONAL WRESTLING CHAMPIONS RINGSIDE CLUB elected Orville Brown, president; Lee Wyckoff first VP; Everett Marshall second VP; Phil Oloffson (better known as the Swedish Angel) third VP; Lou Thesz, honorary fourth VP; Joe Adelman, executive secretary; Sam Feeback, executive treasurer, and John Davis, recording secretary.

Wrestling lost another of its finest gentlemen with the sudden passing of Bert Ruby. Bert, who had been an outstanding wrestler, was forced to retire due to heart trouble and had been promoting in upstate Michigan very successfully for the past number of years.

Bob Hamby has given up wrestling for a while and using the name of Handsome Herbert is acting as manager for Bob Brown and Bob Geigel. Well, those two "nuts" need a trainer or keeper, not a manager. All I can say is they deserve each other.

Sirs:

I am writing to tell you how great your magazine is and to ask a favor of you. Will you please print a photo of our favorite wrestler, Bull Curry?

He wrestles around here quite often and we think he is the Greatest! No matter what anyone says, we love ya Mr. Curry!!

Peggy Morgan

WANTS STORY ON OFFICIALS

Sirs:

I have been reading "The Listening Post" by Earle Yetter in each issue of WRESTLING REVUE and have enjoyed his column very much.

His newsy column adds greatly to your WRESTLING REVUE each month.

I wish you would write an editorial and give us your idea of having two judges and one referee for each single match in this country.

Also two referees and two judges for each tag team match.

The promoters are getting away with murder and let things go by that two judges would not let go. Some of the promoters do not crack down on the worst offenders. That gives wrestling a bad name.

I look forward in reading WRESTLING REVUE each month.

Earl Elder
Baltimore, Md.

SEXTON CLUB LOVES US

Sirs:

First of all, I'd like to tell you that WRESTLING REVUE is the best wrestling magazine in the world. It is so good, that it is the official magazine of the RICKY SEXTON FAN CLUB. I am the president of the club. I, myself, and the officers and members of the club would appreciate it, if you had a story on our hero in the near future.

Patrick Quigley
Newark, N.J.

PEPPER GOMES

WANTS STORY ON PARKS

Sirs:

I have been getting your magazine for over a year and I like it very much. I want to know when you are going to do a story on Reg Parks.

I know he is a good wrestler and has been very successful with Doug Gilbert as a tag-team.

Russell Cavanaugh
Dorchester, Mass.

(Editor's Note: We had a big feature on Parks in our July '67 issue.)

GAGNE GREATER

Sirs:

This is the firs time I have ever written to you, and I'd like to say your magazine is great, but there's someone who is the greatest, That is Vern Gagne. He has defeated all the top wrestlers during his long and illustrious career.

I think it's about time you have a feature on a great business man, wrestler, and a true gentleman, Verne Gagne.

Vic Orlandino
Bellwood, Ill.

(Editor's Note: We had a big feature on Verne in our sister magazine, BOXING ILLUSTRATED, October '66 issue)

WRESTLING NO FAKE

Sirs:

I agree very much with the letter from Alex Wiegel in your June issue. I DO NOT think wrestling is a fake either.

What if we true wrestling fans went around saying that football and baseball are fakes? The baseball and football fans would be indignant.

Well, wrestling is a sport, just like football and baseball, where one side tries to beat the other. These people who think wrestling is a fake should get in the ring with a pro and find out.

Peggy June Ferrell
Thomaston, Ga.

WANTS BACK ISSUES

Sirs:

I know WRESTLING REVUE is a very popular magazine but it would be more popular if old issues were available.

I'm a young subscriber of W.R. and I would like to know if I could buy old issues (not listed in the back issues ad.) I need them to complete my collection. Those that I am missing are Summer 1960; Summer 1961 and December 1961. I hope you can help me.
